

THE automobile has set a new standard of morals. It has made everybody register and carry his identification number conspicuously visible, for the express purpose of accepting responsibility for his own conduct. Instead of the old privilege of fleeing from the scene of a crime and refusing to be a witness against himself, the motorist must stay at the scene of the injury, report his identity and give himself up; otherwise, he is that worst of miscreants, the "hit-and-run" driver.

He must show consideration for the rights of others, or the roads will become impassable. And, finally, he is held to a new standard of sobriety. Scientific tests indicate that one who has had one drink within four hours ought not to drive. Certainly, he is not "intoxicated" by any other standard. In other words, the "conduct becoming a gentleman," which is merely desirable for other people, is obligatory on the motorist.

The present crusade for the stricter enforcement of prohibition will not, of course, catch all the offenders, nor convict all it catches. No enforcement will ever do that. Fortunately, it is not necessary.

You do not have to capture all the rum pirates and capture all the rum pirates. You do not have to make their business unprofitable. Then the uncaught remnant will eliminate themselves. You do not have to make it impossible for the individual consumer to get a drink. It is enough to make it so expensive that most people cannot afford it, and so many that the less "good" liquor gets by the smuggling lines, the more poisonous the concocted native moonshine is likely to be.

If that risk gets serious, normal men will avoid taking it. The abnormal will not. So, once enforcement goes "over the peak," the rest of the way is down hill, and furnishes much of its own momentum.

"ENCOURAGED by recent announcements by members of congress and politicians from next over the country that the next congress will pass a beer and wine law," the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment is seeking 50,000 new members in California, and presumably similar quotas from other states.

Doubtless there have been such "announcements." There are political "wets" in and out of congress, and they are talking very loudly, but don't let them fool you.

The next congress is not guesswork. It is already elected, and its composition is known. It is the "bonest" sort of bone dry, by a huge majority. Speculate, if you must, on the following congress, which is not yet chosen. There is no indication that it will be any less "dry"—but what if it were?

If it passed a "beer and wine" law, the president would veto it; and even if it had the two-thirds vote to pass it over his veto, the supreme court would set it aside as unconstitutional.

The thing simply can't be done. Argue all you like that it ought to be done; even elect a congress that wants to do it—it can't be done. This thing is finished! The law will never be another drop of legal booze in America while you or your children live.

You may make bootleg booze cheaper or dearer, easier or harder to get, but you will never have legal booze. Right or wrong, for better or worse—this thing is finished, and there is nothing to do about it.

THE long-predicted two-story streets have arrived. Chicago is building two of them, as an experiment. They will, of course, relieve the situation a little. Three-story, and then four-story streets will relieve it still more.

We shall have them all. But even ten-story streets will not be enough, if we persist in erecting forty-story buildings. Even American "individual rights" cannot buck the laws of mathematics. It may be the "right" of every landowner to build as high as he finds fit, individually profitable, and of each of his tenants to drive his individual automobile to work, and park it in front of his office.

But the multiplication table cares nothing for "rights." It is interested only in possibilities and necessities. A certain number of square feet of space will go around to certain number of people and machines, and no more.

When that point is reached, individual "right" gives way to public necessity. There are considerations more important than increasing the rental value of anybody's corner lots.

DOUBTLESS Lloyd George meant nothing more than the statement of a long-obvious fact when he said that in the event of a war in the Pacific, Britain and America would be on the same side.

It is at least true that if America were in such a war, Britain would be on our side. The converse may not be so certain. If Britain were in such a war, America would probably try to keep out of it, of course it would not succeed; but the process of realizing international inevitables works slowly in America.

The real point is that there need be no war at all in the Pacific, with Britain and America either in or out of it. Unlike the Atlantic, the Pacific situation is simple. There are only three naval powers in the Pacific, Britain, America and Japan. Agreement between these three, not to fight each other, and to keep their naval establishments impotent for aggression, is as inviolable for defense, is easy.

To a considerable extent, it already exists, and, with increasing understanding, it can be made stronger. Between themselves, they can thus insure peace. As to all others, their interests are common, and can also assure peace. The problem of the Pacific may not be easy, but it is simple.

Crazed Throng of 700 Persons in Excelsior Springs Take Law in Its Hands

Despite Efforts of Police, Crowd Accomplishes Its Death Purpose in Street

(By United Press)
EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Aug. 7.—A mob of 700 persons dragged Miller Mitchell, negro, assaulter of Miss Maude Holt, 17, from the county jail here this afternoon and lynched him.

The mob entered the jail shortly before 3 p. m. and brought the negro into the street, where he was hanged.

Mitchell was identified by Miss Holt as the man who kept her from an automobile on a road near here early today and attacked her.

A crowd milled around the jail all morning and reinforcements were rushed here from surrounding towns in an endeavor to hold the mob at bay. Early attempts to storm the jail were frustrated by police.

Officials appealed to leaders of the mob to disperse, but the crowds insisted on getting at Mitchell.

Shortly before 3 o'clock, the leaders at the head of the crowd of men stormed the jail, overpowered the guards and dragged Mitchell from his cell.

The negro was taken out into a street near the jail and a rope fastened about his neck. One end was thrown over the limb of a tree and his body was quickly swung into the air.

The lynching occurred before a detail of 51 policemen who had arrived from Kansas City.

Raymond Cummins, county prosecutor, several deputies, all heavily armed, Liberty, Mo., police and local authorities arrived at the jail in time to frustrate one attempt of the mob to enter out building and drag the negro out.

The authorities had planned to take the threatened negro to Liberty.

NATION'S CAPITAL WILL BE GUARDED BY MARINES DURING KLAN CEREMONIAL

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—As thousands of Ku Klux Klansmen and their families from surrounding states bore down on Washington in motor cars and special trains, police and marines completed plans for preservation of order during the first demonstration of the hooded organization at the nation's capital tomorrow.

"Washingtonians, arise and stop this farce in a legal way," appealed handbills distributed by Thomas L. Aumont, head of the Anti-K. K. league.

"Crusaders of Protestant Christian America assemble at the national shrine of patriotism for Christ, home and native land," replied the headlines of a fraternal organ sympathetic to the Klan.

There was little excitement apparent today, however, among the citizens and officials

Warren was known about town for his bohemian intellectual attainments. He is believed to have lost his mind through overstudy.

The boy was morose and silent when arrested. He was held at the city jail where authorities tried to question him. He refused to give any details of the tragedy.

Revise Freight Rates from Utah

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The interstate commerce commission today disposed of protests by the Ogden grain exchange in a tentative order establishing joint rates from Utah points to points in California between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Comparisons with similar rates from Colorado points on a basis to California points showed the Ogden exchange which the commission attempted to remedy by the new joint rates.

The complaint also asked relief from the rates between Utah points and terminals at San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Astoria and Seattle, but these rates were not found unjust and no new rates were proposed.

SCOTT SAVED FROM NOOSE BY INSANITY

Jury Holds Convicted Man Is Lunatic and He Will Be Committed to Asylum

WIFE WEEPS FOR JOY

Ex-Millionaire Displays But Little Emotion As He Hears His Life Is Spared

(By United Press)
CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Russell Scott's relatives and friends have saved him from the gallows. The former millionaire, convicted of murdering a drug clerk and twice saved from execution within a few hours of the time set for the springing of the trap, has been declared insane.

A jury in Judge Joseph B. David's court, after listening to testimony and legal wrangling for four days, decided late yesterday that Scott's life should be spared on the ground of insanity and the prisoner will be sent to the Chester asylum.

May Yet Be Hanged.

Under the law, if Scott recovers his reason, the death penalty must be executed, but no person in a similar case has ever been hanged.

Scott emerged from his terrible ordeal with little emotion. His wife, Mrs. Catherine Scott, who, after the trial, wept with lines of grief, paced the floor of the courtroom and corridors almost all of the three and a half hours that the jury was deliberating. With her was Russell's mother, a large and matronly woman, who had difficulty maintaining her composure.

Thomas Scott, the father, sat apart most of the time, mostly in thought.

Morbidly curious men and women kept the vigil in the dimly-lighted courtroom. Shortly before the jury was brought in, word came to the family group that a verdict of insanity—therefore life—had been reached.

Wife Is In Tears.

Russell's wife sat tense as the jury filed in. When the clerk read the verdict, declaring that Scott, declared a lunatic, or insane after Feb. 4, 1925, Mrs. Scott slumped forward and tears of relief flowed freely.

In his first interview since a jury last night declared him insane, Russell Scott, declared today he was sane and that he would consent to his fight to prove that he did not kill Joseph Maurer, young drug clerk.

Walking back and forth in the death cell in the county jail, awaiting removal to the asylum for the criminal insane at Chester, Scott said:

"I am sane. I don't care what the jury says or what the judge says. But now that I have been saved from the gallows, we will have plenty of time to establish my innocence."

"Within a short time, my wife will produce evidence to show that I had nothing to do with the killing."

Scott's parents and wife and his chief attorney, William Scott Stewart, were in the cell when Scott made his declaration to newspapermen. Scott appeared perfectly calm and self-possessed.

TEXAN EXECUTED IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Aug. 7.—Cheated in a last-minute attempt to end his life, George Clem Gray, 40, former prohibition agent and deputy sheriff of Tarrant county, was sent to death in the electric chair today for the slaying of Otis Ballard, in 1923. The doomed man was dragged to the chair with blood streaming from his neck, slashed with a safety razor blade. He was pronounced dead at 12 o'clock, four minutes after the current was applied.

NEW ANGLES IN ADOPTION CASE ARE DEVELOPED

(By United Press)
NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—New troubles today beset Edward Browning, millionaire realtor, who this week adopted a 16-year-old Bohemian girl and set out to furnish her with every conceivable luxury.

Mrs. Anna St. John, of Rye, N. Y., today wrote to the commissioner of public welfare, Bird S. Coler, asking him to return to her Dorothy Sunshine Browning, the first child adopted several years ago by Browning.

It was as a companion for Dorothy Sunshine that the millionaire sought his latest adopted daughter.

Letter From Mrs. St. John.

In a letter to Coler, released exclusively through the United Press today, Mrs. St. John wrote:

"Permit me to write you in regard to Dorothy S. Browning, youngest adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Browning. Your statement in today's papers about Browning's latest adopted daughter proves you to be a man of high honor."

"I hope you will listen to my plea for poor little Dorothy. I am her first foster mother, the nearest and only person belonging to or interested in the child."

"She was deserted by her own kin at the age of four months, at which time I adopted her. About four years later I gave her to Mr. and Mrs. Browning because at that time it seemed to be the only right and fair thing to do."

"Since then I have learned that most of what they represented to me as true facts were lies. Mrs. Browning deserted the child two years ago and I cannot believe that Mr. Browning is fit to be her guardian and now this disgusting farce of adopting that young woman."

"My heart is breaking to think of what may be in store for Dorothy. Don't you think there is cause for taking her away from him? We are both working people with one little girl, also an adopted child, but will gladly take Dorothy and give her a decent home or if that cannot be, can't she in some way be placed in the care of responsible people? I dearly love Dorothy but have not the money to fight Mr. Browning. Mr. Coler, if you are interested and will see me personally, please let me know when and where I may call."

"Thanking you, I am,

"Very truly yours,

"Anna St. John."

Of Great Importance.

Commissioner Coler said he placed "great importance" on this letter.

"While, because of Mary Spas' age, her case did not exactly come under my jurisdiction, this new angle, relative to the previous adoption, most certainly did."

Commissioner Coler immediately sent an agent from his department to Rye, with instructions to obtain all information that Mrs. St. John had to offer.

That Mary Spas, claiming she is "just over 16," actually observed her twenty-first birthday last Friday, was established to Commissioner Coler's satisfaction today, when he received a report from the board of education, stating that their records showed Mary was born July 31, 1904.

In a letter today the commissioner asked George P. Nicholson, corporation counsel for New York City, "to make application to the surrogate of Queens county in my name for the purpose of permitting me, as commissioner of public welfare, to intervene and be made a party in the guardianship proceedings so that I can request the court to reopen the hearing on the adoption transaction."

Dorothy in Vermont.

The exact whereabouts of Dorothy Sunshine, who, according to Browning, is "up in Vermont," has become a center of interest in Coler's investigation.

The commission told the United Press today that he had been unable to locate the girls' camp, where Dorothy is said to be spending a vacation.

Browning continued to evade questions as to his first adopted daughter's whereabouts.

"There is no town or city anywhere near the camp," he said, "and the lake on which the camp is located has no name."

PAVE WAY TO REOPEN MINE WAGE PARLEY

Atlantic City Conference Likely to Be Resumed On Action of Operators

LEADERS OF BOTH SIDES OF OPINION THAT ANTHRACITE STRIKE WON'T BE CALLED

(By United Press)
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 7.—A letter from Samuel D. Warriner, chief of the anthracite operators, has paved the way for resumption of the wage negotiations and a reply by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, may lead to a renewal of the conference here.

Both leaders expressed hope that a strike of 158,000 hard coal mine workers on September 1 will not be necessary.

Warriner's letter, which brought a ray of hope for resumption of the wage discussions, was conciliatory in tone. The operators' spokesman expressed hope that "means will be found to compose the differences between us and avoid a suspension of production."

He denied Lewis' charge that the operators' negotiators at Atlantic City are instructed to refuse concessions.

MARTIAL LAW IN OKLAHOMA THREATENS

HENRIETTA, Okla., Aug. 7.—"Religious" procedure of striking union miners to gain public sentiment and "soften the hearts" of mine owners ended abruptly today as Sheriff John Russell, of Oklahoma county, issued a proclamation here ordering such demonstrations stopped and threatening martial law.

Two alleged union miners, said to have disregarded the sheriff's order, were arrested.

State troops have been here in charge for several weeks following an outbreak.

Between 700 and 1000 union miners quit work rather than accept the 1917 wage scale.

Characterized as the "strangest procedure ever employed by striking miners," the workers appealed to non-union coal diggers and mine owners through prayers and by singing hymns and "The Star Spangled Banner." In their prayers they asked "divine protection" for strike-breakers.

Each day as the strike-breakers quit their work, union miners and their families gathered around the mine openings, armed with American flags and hymn books.

Fredericks Will Leave Congress

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7.—Congressman John D. Fredericks announced here today he would not be a candidate for re-election in the next congressional campaign.

"A stand will probably be taken upon that subject at the next session of congress."

Congressman Fredericks will serve two more sessions of congress before his term expires.

MANICURE GIRL SOUGHT IN MYSTERY OF MISSING SILK FACTORY CHEMIST

(By United Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—The "find the woman" angle in the hunt for Charles Henry Schwartz, Berkeley and Walnut Creek chemist, sought for murder, was given serious consideration here today.

A. J. Kane, detective in the case, reported an anonymous telephone tip in a disguised voice from a woman, advising him to find a manicure girl with whom Schwartz had been friendly.

The girl was reported in Los Angeles or Burbank, where searches are being made.

F. S. Spencer, employe at the Walnut Creek artificial silk factory, where a body, at first supposed to be that of Schwartz, was found after a blast July 30, told authorities the chemist telephoned to Oakland before she sailed on Wednesday.

SAYS FALSEHOODS ARE NECESSARY

HONOLULU, Aug. 7.—Falsehoods are necessary to the maintenance of civilization, in the opinion of Dr. Herbert Goddard, psychologist of the University of Ohio, as expressed in a talk recently before a large gathering.

"People could not live together if the world adhered to the principles of 'the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth,' he added.

"We could not have a group of people, consequently no cities, towns, or communities, if we told the truth all the time. We must tell lies. We have to be honest, but at times it is necessary for us to lie for the welfare of the community."

He illustrated his conviction by recalling a wager between two men, one of whom declared he could refrain from falsehood for a period of 24 hours. The men visited the home of a friend, where one of the daughters was playing the piano.

"The playing was very poor, and when asked his opinion of the music, the man answered that it was 'punk,' whereupon he was kicked out of the house," Dr. Goddard said.

SEATTLE, Aug. 7.—Speaking of strange professions picked by women, Mrs. E. C. Wilson has selected one of the queerest, and one which takes her into the Far North fog banks. For Mrs. Wilson is a shrimp specialist, with a nice little business of her own and talks in terms of cases, carloads, canneries and markets. Hurrying down from Alaska, she will now sound out the markets in the south, east, and middle states.

"Business is fascinating," said Mrs. Wilson recently. "I love it. I might not have picked shrimps as a choice, but had it thrust upon me three years ago while planning menus and salads for a southern university mess hall. Now shrimps are my hobby."

Groom Was Stingy, So Wife Stabs Him

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 7.—A quarrel with her husband over money matters caused a bride of six weeks to thrust a butcher knife into his side. As a result, George Krueger is in a hospital but will recover, and his bride, Norma, is being held. The stabbing occurred in the kitchenette of their home. The bride said her husband was "too stingy."

MRS. MARY JO GRUBB-HUSAR

Santa Ana friends and relatives of Mary Jo Grubb, 25, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Grubb, 118 Edgewood road, were surprised to hear of her marriage, yesterday, to U. S. District Attorney Leon and G. Husar, aboard the liner President Taft, as the ship was pulling out of the harbor at Shanghai, China.

First news of the marriage, which was performed by the captain of the ship, was received here in news dispatches from the Orient.

Mrs. Husar is well known in Santa Ana, having lived here a number of years. She left Santa Ana eleven months ago to spend a year with her sister, in Shanghai.

PETERSBURG, Ind., Aug. 7.—Stacey Arnold and Robert Huffman, charged with selling home brew in a ravine near a church ice cream social, will be tried here in the September term of the Pike county court. Arnold has been released on bond but Huffman is still in jail.

The two men made a batch of home brew and were selling it in a ravine near Slickum, five miles east of here, while the church social was going on.

Shortly after the opening of the liquor booth, the men at the social deserted the church function and streamed down to the ravine.

Sheriff Burns fell in with the crowd. When he arrived at the booth he called for a quart. When the liquor was served, the sheriff nabbed the operators by the neck. The customers scattered to the hills. The sheriff says he is keeping a half dozen bottles for evidence.

VAST CHANGES IN EDUCATION URGED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7.—An educational revolution, involving radical teaching reforms in schools and colleges throughout the country, was touched off today at the convention of the American Chemical society.

A "senate of education," comprised of representatives of industry and schools and colleges in every state, will be created to effect drastic changes in scientific teaching, it was decided by the committee on chemical education.

"The agencies responsible for the training of the youth of the country must keep in step to meet the revolution that is at hand," Prof. Neil E. Gordon, of the University of Maryland, and chairman of the committee, declared, after action had been voted.

"A nation-wide campaign will be pushed at once to raise the level of instruction. Present school and college courses in chemistry are lagging behind the swift development of chemical science in the economy of the research, and they must be completely revamped."

A new type of research will be part of the revolutionary program, according to Dr. Edgar Fahs Smith, vice provost of the University of Pennsylvania, another member of the committee.

"We must develop a new type of research man for our universities," he said. "We must reach back into the high schools and attract only the best students, give them a broad and thorough training in the uses of chemicals, and the requirements of the various industries of the nation."

"The senate of education" was described as a radical departure in the field of teaching that would bring about a working union between schools and colleges and the industries "such as enabled Germany to achieve notable triumphs of science."

Stills Are Beaten Into Kitchenware

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 7.—The scriptural admonition of beating swords into plowshares has found an application here in the turning of illegal whiskey-making apparatus into utensils of lawful and domestic value.

Following the active enforcement of the eighteenth amendment by civil officers here, a large number of copper and brass stills was accumulated, but for a long time they have been stored awaiting orders.

Now they are being turned over to a shop in Prescott run by disabled veterans from Whipple Barracks, who use the metal in the production of works of art—book ends, trays, etc.—and utensils for the kitchen.

Weds Witness And Escapes Check Charge

New legal twist not promulgated by Blackstone: Marry the evidence. That was the way B. F. Moe defeated a check charge brought against him recently, according to the authorities.

Moe was accused of passing a bogus check at a local drug store. A girl saw him pass the check, it was said.

Deputy District Attorney Kenneth Burns appeared in Justice K. E. Morrison's court today and dismissed the charge.

"It's no use," he said. "He married the girl. Now she can't legally testify against him."

Whiskers Grow In Style of 1876

DEADWOOD, S. D., Aug. 7.—A novel feature of the days of '76 celebration in Deadwood on August 12, 13 and 14 will be the presence of several hundred business men and other male residents of Deadwood whose faces will be adorned with whiskers corresponding to those which most men wore during the early days of Deadwood, in 1876. For a month or more these men have not shaved and by the time of the celebration they will have luxuriant growths of whiskers which will make them a picturesque part of the celebration.

As a result of men letting their whiskers grow, the male population of Deadwood is taking on the appearance of Russian communists.

Many of the modern buildings of Deadwood will be covered with pine slabs during the three day celebration, to make them resemble, as near as possible, the crude little buildings which were erected immediately after the great influx of gold seekers to the Black Hills in 1876, following the discovery of gold in Deadwood gulch and other parts of this district.

Plan Historic Pageant

A pageant will be one of the features of the celebration. Over 150 actors will take part in the great open air spectacle. The pageant will be divided into three episodes, the first depicting the coming of the white men to the Black Hills, the second illustrating the early and exciting days in the Black Hills, and the third showing Deadwood as it is today—one of the most orderly communities in the country. The third episode will show the growth and advancement of the city during the last 49 years.

There's no ill-luck in turning back if you are on the wrong road.

A WORD OF COMFORT
Nothing which man makes can compare with God's handiwork.

and sorrow you are tempted to seek for consolation in diverse interests which you hope will help you to forget. You are blind to the evidence of God's loving care, ere
His healing touch upon your life can soothe your pain.

CONVICTED MAN IS GIVEN PROBATION

His excuse that he was intoxicated when he entered a house in Anaheim and stole a coat and vest was not the reason why G. Bus-tillos, Los Angeles Mexican, got probation today from Superior Judge Z. B. West.

Judge West made that plain when he sentenced Bustillos to not less than five years at San Quentin and then suspended execution of judgment for five years.

"This excuse of being drunk when committing crime runs off me like water off a duck's back," remarked the court. "However, I am going to grant probation in this case."

Bustillos was given to understand that during the five years of probation he must walk an exceedingly straight and narrow path, neither touching a drop of liquor nor violating any law of any city, county, state or the nation.

He must report to Probation Officer L. A. Warren every three months during the first two years and less often thereafter. His movements are circumscribed to the seven southern counties of the state.

edy, the

EXPECT FROST
INSURANCE TO BE AVAILABLE

No definite information as to whether or not frost insurance would be written again this winter by several insurance companies had been received yet today by local insurance men. J. D. Johnson, city clerk, insurance agent and realtor of Claremont, announced this week that the frost protection would be definitely available, and Mac O. Robbins, a friend of Johnson, said today that the report probably was true.

According to the report by Johnson, rates will be doubled this year, and groves which have cover crops planted between the rows of trees will be imposed with a 25 per cent increase. The same report says that the lowest frost insurance rates will be on grapefruit.

If the insurance is written it probably will be available by September, according to local agents.
Further word regarding the situation is expected soon by the insurance men.

LIONS CLUBS GIVEN CREDIT FOR Y. CAMP

Credit for making the undertaking a success is given the various Lions club in the county and individual citizens in a bulletin issued today by Ralph C. Smedley, general secretary of the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A., setting forth the varied activities of the county Y. M. C. A. boys' camp in the San Bernardino mountains, officially designated as Camp Oceola. The camp was closed last Tuesday after what Smedley reported to be a most successful season.

During the six weeks that the camp was open this season, a total of 155 boys attended. Santa Ana had 54 boys, Fullerton and the north county district had 51, Orange, 27, and Anaheim, 23. There were more than 300 visitors in the camp, in addition to the boys, and with the adult leaders and others who attended, the total made up the largest summer camp that the Orange county Y. M. C. A. has ever promoted. There were no serious accidents, nor any sickness of great consequence. In all this company of campers, and all who were in the camp were impressed with the beauty of the location and the splendid spirit and influence of the camp.

Knox Finley, of Pomona college, served as business manager of the camp throughout the season. The local Y secretaries had charge of the camp program. T. P. McKee handled the Santa Ana boys, Archie Raitt those from the north end of the county, and C. E. Morrow and John Rudd the Orange and Anaheim groups.

A number of well known citizens helped the secretaries in putting the camp program of activities into effect. The Rev. T. H. Walker, of Anaheim, was on the ground for a two weeks' period, and M. E. Beebe and others from Anaheim helped. E. E. Campbell, George Sherwood, Frank Henderson and others from Orange spent several days a piece helping the Orange boys to have a good time. E. C. Basten, John Scott and Charles Lee, of Placentia were other valued helpers. At all times during the camp period, some of the friends of the boys were in or near the camp, helping to make the work a success.

Not the least factor in the camp life was the excellent food provided. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Kenline, of Costa Mesa, had charge of the kitchen, and served an appetizing and well balanced menu.

A most important feature of the year's work is the "Lions' lodge," a permanent camp building made possible by the co-operation of the Lions' clubs of the county. This building will be the social and business center of the camp in years to come. It was dedicated and formally presented to the Y. M. C. A. on August 2, by a group of boys headed by Dr. E. H. Rowland, Harold Walberg, and other representatives of the Lions clubs of the county.

Next year, it is planned to keep the camp open for the entire summer, and plans are under way to provide for a family camping ground in connection with the boys' camp, so that families may camp on a nearby location, securing their meals at the camp dining room. A camp period for girls is also in prospect as a new feature next season.

Annual Bean Crop

More than 300,000 tons of beans are raised in this country yearly, it seems, and enough of them are canned to make, if properly piled up, nine monuments as tall and large as the Washington obelisk. Of bean soup, authorities declare, but probably they're guessing at it, as governmental authorities—and others—sometimes do—enough is made and swallowed every year to take for more than three hours the place of all the water that runs over Niagara Falls. It is to be hoped that the truth of this last statement never will be tested. It would be a terrible waste of nutrition which everybody respects, however it may be as to liking, and besides, how the falls would look!

PHONOGRAPH IS USED TO TEACH FOLK DANCING

The county library does not confine itself to the circulation of books, it was learned today from Miss Margaret Livingston, librarian. Phonograph records are the newest property of the library. They are regularly distributed to the various county schools for use in folk dancing, music study and writing classes.

"No jazz," says the librarian, but she has many other kinds of music "on file" in the county establishment. Some schools are equipped with their own picture projectors, and it is the common practice of many eastern libraries to distribute films as well as books. Miss Livingston said.

There are a few Orange county schools which have motion picture outfits, but the library has not yet been charged with the job of keeping films in readiness for them.

BAN ON GOLF

After years of much controversy, pro and con, golf is finally taboo on a majority of big league clubs. A few clubs still permit the playing of golf without any restrictions, several allowing the athletes to indulge on off days, but most of the managers have an absolute ban on the game during the baseball season.

On one club there is an automatic fine of $500 for the playing of golf at any time during the regular diamond campaign.

The funny part of it is that most of the managers who have the bars up on golf are enthusiasts of the game.

Keep too many iron in the fire, and one of them will burn you.

BY RUSSELL BIRDWELL

"What do movie stars do with their old clothes?" asks a hopeful bargainer. They wear them.

While Ralph and Vera Lewis, veteran screen players, were celebrating their twenty-fourth wedding anniversary, Joseph Schildkraut was in court getting a divorce from Elsie Bartlett, noted stage player. They had been married a year.

Cheese and ham sandwiches are named after the stars in the Pica-dilly cafe. A Gloria Swanson one sells for 50 cents and Pola's name-sake brings 75. The management avers he may be forced to make the prices equal, as inferences are being deducted.

There is a touch of fateful irony in the recent arrest of Marshall Neilan, the director, for driving his car into a telephone pole while under the spell of inebriation.

Neilan is finishing his picture, "The Skyrocket," in which the much exploited and married Peggy Hopkins Joyce plays the lead.

In order that Peggy might play in pictures, Neilan promised Will Hays that he would keep her on "the straight and narrow and out of the limelight."

This the director has done, but the clame with the "czar of the cinema" said nothing about Neilan's limelight, speeding cars and stubborn telephone poles.

Why Editors Go Crazy

Corinne Griffith says:

"My advice to embryonic screen players is this: First, read good literature; study the masters of rhetoric—this will exercise your imagination."

"Second, develop your power of observation; watch people; question the reasons for actions and motives of activities of individuals. This accomplished, combine observation with imagination, add a dash of personality, mix thoroughly with ambition in the cup of stick-to-itiveness and you have the formula of success."

After applying for $150,000 insurance policy on her face, Blanche Sweet said:

"I am working in Edwin Carewe's 'The Sea Woman' and there are a number of gas explosions in the story."

This element of combustion is nothing unusual in a movie story.

Rudy Valentino's press agent in announcing that Vilma Banky is to be the star of next leading woman wrote a romantic yarn of the Hollywood foothills. He said that Rudy was riding in the hills and from a distance spied a beautiful woman on horseback. He galloped to her. He introduced himself, and "was surprised to learn the young woman was Vilma Banky, Budapest astorine, recently brought to this country by Sam Goldwyn, the producer."

As a matter of unkind fact, Miss Banky's dressing room in the United studios is only about 30 feet from Rudy's office. He's been seeing her every day for a couple of months. It was too bad that Rudy has to ride away out in the country to "discover" her, especially after Sam Goldwyn had suggested to Valentino that Miss Banky was open to film engagements.

It isn't suspense, it is sexpense which makes box-office attractions, so producers he believe.

On the boulevard: Jack Dempsey, the actor with a pugilist's past and a plastic nose, escorting Estelle Taylor to a tid-bit counter . . . Josef Von Sternberg, the poser, who lives by the megaphone . . . barefooted Peter, the hermit, down from his foot-hill abode, crusading along movie row . . . dainty Betty Bronson with her two-hundred pound mamma, coming out of Woolworth's . . . a pan-handler stops me . . . "nothing doing," I say and walk along . . . "I didn't know you were an actor," he shouts at me.

Sally Rand used to wear a bathing suit for Mack Sennett. Now she is reveling in the folds of drama under the tutelage of Papa de Mille. Sally has "most forgotten that she ever had such a lurid past as a bathing girl. At least, her memory had begun to fail concerning this part of her life until she was talking over the phone with Sennett the other night. "Say," said Mack Sennett. "You needn't be so high-brow just because you're working for that guy De Mille. Remember your bathing suit is still over at the studio."

Muriel Ostriche, movie star 12 years ago for the old Thanhauser company, is making plans to stage a comeback. She has separated from her architect-husband, Frank A. Brady, in New York, and with her two children is now heading for the coast.

Muriel was quite a girl in her day. She was considered quite darling 10 years ago for being the first among movie actresses to wear men's garters and socks.

Louise Elliott Is Honored With Jolly Steak Bake

Miss Louise Elliott, whose approaching marriage to Henry Walker of Orange is a matter of much interest to her many friends, was the guest of honor last evening at a jolly party at Orange County park, where her associates in the business office of The Register were hosts.

Miss Elliott has for two years been a member of The Register's business office staff, where her sunny temperament and unfailing humor have won her a host of friends, not only among her associates at The Register, but among the patrons whom she has so efficiently served while there.

One of the long tables in the park was gaily decked with trailing vines, and in the center was a big festive-looking box decorated with a bow of airy tulle. A miniature bride and groom guarded the box, and streamers of ribbon led to the place cards for Miss Elliott and Mr. Walker.

The best of out-door suppers, with everything from barbecued steaks to iced watermelon, was served by members of The Register staff, and after supper, the pretty bride-to-be was presented with the big white box, which was found to contain a handsome silver baking dish.

Finds Argentine Ant In Memphis, Expert Reports

MEMPHIS, Aug. 7.—"We have discovered an Argentine ant in Memphis," said R. S. Walker, special representative of the state department of agriculture and the University of Tennessee at the joint meeting of the chamber of commerce and the city club, recently.

Mr. Walker didn't say where the ant was found, but said that while he was addressing a meeting of Boy Scouts one of the boys brought up an ant that looks very much like the Argentine ant, and that he will send it to Nashville.

"It would be shocking to you if you knew the ant population of Memphis," said Mr. Walker. "It would surprise you if you heard the ant population of one city block. Why, there are millions and millions of them."

"And ants are not idiots. They all have college educations. There are many species. And listen, talk about speed. Ants have speed, I know. By a test, I have figured that with the speed the ant has, if an ant were as strong and big as a man, it could go two miles in a minute without perspiration."

JEWELERS DO THEIR PART IN AIDING DAN CUPID

(LILLIAN VAN OSDALE)

As the society calendar is filled with marriages, which are to take place very soon and as so many of Santa Ana bride-elects are flashing solitaires to the admiration and envy of their friends, comes now the question, "How did the diamond get there?"

Of course we all know or at least might surmise that the fiancée with endearing words and gestures put it there, what we want to know is how does the young couple get when they go into the jewelry store to purchase the diamond. For you see the jeweler, like the county clerk's office and the minister is also a little aide to Dan Cupid and he must be so tactful, don't you know.

So the setting for this story will be any jewelry store in Santa Ana and from what the writer has reaped in making the rounds this is the way it all happens.

Sometimes the groom-elect, (apologies to Emily Post) comes into the jewelry store alone. In this case, he generally knows the size of his lady love's finger, for lovers have a way of trying on each other's rings. So he says kind of hesitatingly that he wants to see some diamonds. He looks them over and then chooses one costing from $30 to $300, according to his financial status.

On the matter of "time," one Santa Ana jeweler expresses it like this: "The younger they are, the more time they want."

But he also hastens to add that the men go to all odds to please their lady friend.

"Sometimes the girl comes in and picks out her diamond. Generally she has it put it away and then some noon, when her sweetheart has a few minutes to spare they come in together and pass judgment on the ring."

"Are the engagement ring purchasers bashful in asking to look at diamonds?"

"That is a pretty hard question to answer," said another Santa Ana jeweler. "But it seems to me that the couples nowadays take engagements as a matter of course and are not so 'fussed' and embarrassed as they used to be. Although, of course, sometimes we get a very bashful couple."

The question was asked, "Are things ever brought back to have the initials changed?"

And the answer was, "If the engagement doesn't go through, then the man generally comes in with the diamond and wants it put into a different setting. Very seldom do we have to change the initials. Maybe it's a sign of bad luck."

FRENCH SPLIT U. S. GAMBLERS' MONEY

PARIS, Aug. 7.—The gambling trust has settled the question of who is going to get the money of Americans and other easy marks this summer in the French casinos. They have divided the field, and wherever resort and watering place visitors put their money on the green tables it will come eventually into the same pockets. Any outward appearance of rivalry will make no difference to the players, who will find exactly the same percentage working against them at whatever beule, chemin de fer or baccarat table lures them.

The trust consists of Cornuche and his partner, Henri Letellier, famed for the success they made out of Canco and Deauville, and Andre, who, through his importance in the gambling world of Paris, has acquired an equal share in the enterprise. It was agreed that he instead of Cornuche should take over the responsibility for the success of the new popular beach of La Baule.

Andre claims this resort as his own find, saying his attention was first attracted to it by the description given by an American officer during the war who was stationed at Saint Nazaire, at the mouth of the Loire, fifteen miles away. Andre financed a casino and big hotel protects there, and while La Baule, which has a three mile beach backed by a forest of scrub pine, is still fresh as paint, it is already drawing the crowd of big players which the gambling trust wants.

Being eight hours from Paris, instead of three, like Deauville, it is a playground for those who want to gamble all night and come out to lie on the beach of late afternoon far from the crowd of Paris tippers taking a holiday for a few hours. The trust wanted to take over La Baule lock, stock, and barrel, but Andre refused to throw it into the pot unless Letellier threw in Chamonix.

Other principal resorts owned by the group are Dieppe and St. Chile, outside Biarritz. Letellier and Andre are both plungers, but they agreed to plunge on different sides of France. The attempt at La Baule is to imitate Palm Beach. In a new addition where expensive cottages are going up palms have been planted among the pines to give a Florida effect.

Capital Letter

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—What the next war will be like nobody knows.

Military men say they do—doubtless think so. But they disagree. Different schools of experts predict half a dozen or more entirely different kinds of fighting. Their predictions conflict, too.

There's no way of adding them up, dividing by the total number of predictions and striking an average.

According to military fundamentalists the next war will be about the same old thing. Armies, with infantry as their backbone, will fight on land. Navies with battleships as their backbone will fight at sea. Aircraft will figure more than ever before but only as army and navy auxiliaries, after all. Warfare's principles haven't changed a bit.

According to the aviation school the next war will be fought in the air. Aircraft will wipe out armies and navies in fig time. The country with the strongest flying force will have the enemy at its mercy before he realizes a fight's started. His surface defenses and defenders destroyed, his cities will be bombed, his countryside harried and he'll have to yield without having had a chance to strike a blow.

According to the chemical school, gas will decide the next war. It may be outlawed but it will be used. Whole armies will be gassed in their trenches. Crews will be gassed on ships at sea. The populations of entire cities will perish similarly. Airplanes will be convenient for raining down death thus but their ammunition will be chemical.

According to the tank school, huge, amphibious super-tanks will win the next war. They'll dwarf the World War tanks as a battleship dwarfs a destroyer. They'll be irresistible and invulnerable.

According to one scientific little group some entirely new weapon may settle the next war—some kind of "death ray"—some application of nature's forces—electricity—an adaptation of wireless principles, possibly.

The idea's rather vague but there have been reports of experiments in this direction, not very well authenticated but so persistent as to have set the scientific set a-thinking.

According to all the rest of the schools, each of the other schools is over-enthusiastic, with the exception of the orthodox school, which is out-of-date.

These aren't all the schools—only some of the principal ones. With so much disagreement among them. What's a nation, dependent on their advice, to do? Build up an all-round military establishment, to suit the whole outfit? That's a large order.

A navy, for instance, is expensive. If it's to be destroyed, first shot out of the bottle, by aircraft, it would be better to scrap it and concentrate on aircraft.

Yet suppose the country does that, and then the aviation school turns out to be mistaken. That would be bad business, too.

Well, it's up to the experts to fight it out the best they can.

Lost Gem Is Five Years In Capitol

MONTPELIER, Vt., Aug. 7.—A valuable diamond from a ring that was lost five years ago has been found in the state treasurer's office, where it had been resting safely, but out of sight, at the back of one of the files. It had been set in a family ring that was worn by Miss Eula Lally, an employee, in the treasurer's office. She made a thorough search at the time it was lost, but had given up hope of ever seeing it again.

RETURN HOME FROM LONG MOTOR TOUR

Mrs. F. E. Banks, 707 Orange avenue, and son, Edward C. Banks, have arrived home from a 5000-mile automobile journey throughout the west.

Mrs. Banks and her son spent two weeks in the Yosemite and from there went to Lake Tahoe and the Yellowstone park, where they remained for sometime. It was in arriving at the latter park, that the worst roads were encountered, heavy rains having left them in bad condition. The travelers made an attempt to see the mountain which slid into the lake, but because of the cloudbursts were unable to do so. Return was made through Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington, Mt. Rainier, in the latter state, being visited.

Mr. Banks left on Wednesday, over the Santa Fe, for Dallas, Tex., where he will spend two weeks, returning here for a brief visit with his mother before returning to his studies at Fort Bragg, where he is instructor of science in the high school.

Japanese Tailor Signboard Says 'Women Have Fits'

TOKIO, Aug. 7.—The westernization of Japan includes compulsory teaching of English in the schools but it does not include a grammatical censorship of signboards of merchants eager to show their knowledge of the English tongue. "I used other remedies but they proved unsuccessful. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Geraldine Cox, 1329-12th St., Oakland, Calif., Apr. 28, 1925.

Tourist Has Goat To Furnish Milk

SIoux FALLS, S. D., Aug. 7.—Tourists visiting the Black Hills and other picturesque parts of South Dakota appear to vie with one another in producing the strangest "outrift" for traveling. W. L. Stearns, a California man, has arrived with a goat as part of his equipment. "A goat cuts living expenses," Mr. Stearns contends. "It means a daily supply of fresh milk whenever the tourist desires to stop."

Russia Desires Independence of American Cotton

TEHERAN, Persia, Aug. 7.—Soviet Russia is planning to make a strong bid for independence from American cotton. Large Russian territories in the Caucasus and Turkestan have been studied and it is declared they are well suited to cotton production. The Moscow authorities are now offering the peasants tax free land if they will grow cotton.

Cocoon Crop Is Damaged by Crows

SEATTLE, Aug. 7.—Crows, very similar to the American birds, have become enemies of the cocoon crop in the Philippines and the Polynesian islands, reports Angus Moade, a returning copra buyer. Crows pick holes in young nuts for the sake of the water found in them. All nuts so damaged blight and drop. Recently a severe drought swept over the chain of far Pacific islands, fresh water being scarce. During this period crows almost ruined the crop. Grove owners shoot the birds and hang their carcasses in the tree tops. A bounty has been placed on them to stimulate their extermination. Some years ago land crabs and large rats menaced the cocoon industry.

Only One Judge At Fort Houston

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 7.—As the first and only military post in the United States to adopt the plan, Fort Sam Houston is to have but one trial judge advocate for all cases to be tried by general courts-martial on the reservation. Capt. A. S. Harrington, 15th field artillery, has been designated to handle cases of the four general courts and one officers general court which may convene from now on. The only other army area in the history of American military jurisprudence to try the new plan is the department of Hawaii, which inaugurated the single judge advocate idea in 1922.

Starving Eskimos Turn Cannibals

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Aug. 7.—A tale of cannibalism in the far reaches of Saskatchewan, north of Fond du Lac, last winter, brought about one of the worst famines in years, is told by E. O. Twiggs, manager of the Revillon Freres Trading company post at Clear Lake, 570 miles northwest of Prince Albert. Mr. Twiggs declared that an old Indian hunter and trapper told him the Eskimos north of Fond du Lac, driven on to desperation by hunger, killed and ate a man, woman and child of the Chippewyan Indian tribe last winter. The aged trapper told of finding the bones of the victims and the places where they had been boiled over a fire and eaten.

Call Typewriter Murder Machine

VIENNA, Aug. 7.—The Central Association of Sales Clerks of Vienna has denounced the typewriter as a murder machine, in a full page manifesto in the Arbeiter Zeitung, addressed to the parents of children who are just old enough. According to this statement, most of the people who operate typewriters die young, and, of all those who die young, one-half die of tuberculosis of the lungs. The typewriter is also accused of causing asthma and stomach trouble.

Hits Wife While In Courtroom On Cruelty Charge

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—When William Carroll, 48 years old, was arraigned before Magistrate Corrigan on a charge of beating his wife, he defied the magistrate to do his worst. Magistrate Corrigan took Carroll at his word and sent him to the workhouse for six months. Carroll maintained his belated attitude while his wife was testifying against him, and when she said that she feared he would beat her, he actually demonstrated that her fears were well founded. "I'll do that, all right," he shouted, as he belabored the woman over the back with his cane. It took four court attendants to make him stop and he was taken to a rear room.

WILL ASK FOR BETTER COAST TRAIN SERVICE

Recommendations that the transcontinental railway systems give careful consideration to the matter of reducing the time of the present train schedules between Chicago and the western coast, and that steps be taken toward establishing through train service from New York to the Pacific coast, are contained in resolutions adopted by the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce.

Copies of the resolutions were forwarded today to the interstate commerce commission, Washington, D. C., and to the general offices of the Santa Fe, the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific systems.

It is the belief of the chamber directors that the growth and development of California is affected adversely by the unnecessarily slow passenger train service between Chicago and the western coast, particularly so at a time when California tourist travel is affected by competition offered from Florida and Europe.

Inquiries made by the chamber have elicited information that schedules of 60 or 62 hours between Los Angeles and Chicago can be maintained with as great a degree of safety as in case of the present transcontinental service.

It also is the belief of the directors that a direct train service between New York and California, eliminating the changing of trains at Chicago, would be productive of increased travel and make up for additional cost of operation.

BODY OF YOUTH TAKEN FROM SEA

The sea today gave up the body of Jose Lopez, 17, of San Juan Capistrano, which it claimed Tuesday.

Lopez's body was recovered at 3 a. m., more than a mile down the beach from where he was drowned, late Tuesday at Capistrano Beach.

At an inquest conducted by Coroner Charles D. Brown at 11 a. m. today, in the Smith & Tuthill funeral parlors here, the jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

The Mexican youth lost his life Tuesday afternoon when a rip tide carried him out to sea. Johnny Landell Jr., 16, son of Justice Jack Landell, of San Juan Capistrano, was almost drowned in a daring effort to rescue Lopez.

Release Airmen Pending Hearing On November 7

James T. Turnstall, 38, El Centro aviator, was free today on his own recognizance, following his arrest in El Centro late last night by Chief Criminal Deputy Ed McClellan and Constable Joe Ryan, on a non-support charge.

McClellan and Ryan made the trip to the desert country late last night, returning here at 6 a. m. today, with their prisoner.

In justice court, Turnstall was freed on condition that he pay $25 a month to his wife, for support of their minor child. His preliminary hearing was continued until November 7.

S. A. IS FIRST ON NATIONAL Y. ROLL OF HONOR

Advices received today by Ralph C. Smedley, general secretary of the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A., from the national headquarters in New York City, state that Santa Ana has won a place at the top of the list of American associations on the Bible study "honor roll" for 1925.

The honor roll is based on the number of Bible study certificates won in proportion to the membership in the boys' department.

Since only 10 associations can be placed on the roll, it is no small honor to win a place, but Santa Ana has scored heavily in winning first place, Smedley declared.

The list is as follows: Santa Ana, Calif.; Muncie, Ind.; Rock Island, Ill.; Brooklyn, N. Y. (New Utrecht); Omaha, Neb.; Bangor, Me.; Wilmington, N. C.; Medina, O.; Moline, Ill.; Nashua, N. H.

Secretary Smedley was especially interested in the fact that while Santa Ana won first place, the third place was taken by Rock Island, Ill., where a former was secretary, and where he was instrumental in the erection of the new building for the association.

The boys of the local "Y" clubs won 130 Bible study certificates this spring, in their examinations. With the encouragement that comes with their success in gaining first place this time, they will enter upon their work in the fall for another season with a determination to do as well or better.

The careful and persistent work done by James A. McDill and T. P. McKee, boys' secretaries, had a great deal to do with the successful result of the year's Bible study, Smedley said.

Woman Injured As Autos Crash

Mrs. L. C. Carr, wife of a Los Angeles fireman, was badly hurt, yesterday, when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband and small daughter, collided with a machine driven by Mrs. W. J. Newsom, Garden Grove, at the intersection of Chapman and Nursery avenues.

She was taken to the Orange County hospital, where it was found she was suffering from three broken ribs, and bad bruises and cuts on the body.

The husband and child were not injured, and no one in the Newsom car were reported hurt.

Court Notes

Court Business Booms

Despite the vacation season, legal business is booming in local courts, it was shown today. Both the superior and justice courts are experiencing a rush of civil cases.

During July, 69 civil cases were filed in Justice K. E. Morrison's court, compared with 44 during July, 1924. The increase was more than 50 per cent. The rush has been maintained in August, 17 cases having been filed during the first five days of the present month.

Fifteen cases were filed in superior court during one day, this week.

The will of the late Charlie A. Nielsen, who died July 5, in Los Angeles, left his estate, valued at $2441, to his mother, Mrs. Anna Nielsen, of Santa Ana. Mrs. Nielsen today had filed the will for probate in superior court.

Woman Is Saved From Lightning By Feather Bed

ROCKWELL CITY, Ia., Aug. 7.—A feather bed saved the life of Mrs. A. J. Longbeams, 90, during a recent thunderstorm. That is the belief of Mrs. Longbeams. The lightning struck the four room house in which the woman lives alone, and tore down the chimney. Then it smashed two windows, leaped back to the chimney and down it, ran around the walls of Mrs. Longbeams' bedroom, struck a nail, jumped over to the bed and tore a large part out of one of the posts. The woman watched the bolt as it leaped madly about and ended its pranks by striking the bedpost, only a few inches from the woman. Mrs. Longbeams was not injured.

Nebraska Lifts Ban On Teachers Who Bob Locks

KEARNEY, Neb., Aug. 7.—Nebraska rural school boards are reluctantly accepting teachers, who wear bobbed hair, but they are almost united in declaring that no young women who dance, smoke, or make dates will be given contracts, according to H. C. Olsen, in charge of the placement bureau of the state normal here. They make the same rule about men.

As a result, says Olsen, an unusual number of vacancies exists in the rural districts, where also the lowest salaries are paid. Olsen says that the ban on bobbed hair was lifted by force, it being practically impossible to find young women teachers without shorn locks.

Billy Evans Says

One of the outstanding hurlers in the present American League chase has been Eddie Rommel of the Athletics.

The excellent work of the famous knuckle-ball artist has done much to keep the Mackian horde up around the top of the heap.

Not only has he been used in regular turn, but out of it as well. Time and again he's been sent in as relief pitcher in a desperate attempt to pull a game out of the fire. And often he's succeeded.

During the lengthy absence of Sam Gray from the activities, it was Rommel along with Slim Harris, who kept the team in the running.

On the recent western jaunt Rommel was the big nose, beating each of the teams in that sector and not losing a tilt.

A Great Record

It was in 1922 that Rommel hung up his sensational record of 27 victories with a team that stayed around the bottom of the heap all season. He lost 13 frays.

All things considered it was one of the premier pitching feats staged in the Johnsonian circuit in quite a stretch. Winning that many bouts in a season is considered an unusual task nowadays for any hurler, let alone putting it over with a lowly second division outfit.

Since then Rommel has only hurled so-so ball, until this year when he got off to a flying start and has clung to the pace down through the months.

During the first 15 weeks of play, Rommel turned in 18 triumphs. And with close to two more months to run, he stands an excellent chance of beating his record of three seasons ago.

Fact is that the Mackian gunner may reach the 30-game mark in victories ere the campaign terminates which is a rare accomplishment, indeed, these days.

Looks Like Star

The Boston Braves appear to have a most promising prospect in Walter Gautreau, former Holy Cross star and former teammate of Owen Carroll of the Detroit Tigers.

Gautreau, a second baseman, has been playing a whale of a game for Bancroft since joining the club a few weeks ago. His fielding has been of a high order and he's been hitting the ball nicely, too.

Gautreau, it will be recalled, was given a trial by Connie Mack of the Athletics following the close of college in June. But the crafty Connie couldn't find room for the tot, so let him go to the Braves on the inter-league waiver route.

Gautreau is just a mite, being one of the smallest players in the majors today. But he's exceptionally fast, smart for a youngster and very aggressive.

If Gautreau keeps up the pace he's started it will no doubt give the lanky Cornelius a good-sized headache to think he let the lad get away from the Shibe stronghold.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

WHY NOT A DOUBLE-BREASTED?

Long years ago, when fashions were the prerogative of the sacrosanct few, somebody upped, and remarked that only the tall, slender man wear the double-breasted suit. Now, a fact like a snowball. The farther it travels, the bigger it gets. Therefore, right to this day the misbelief prevails that only one type of figure is complimented by the double-breasted model. In truth, any man who is not downright obese and globular in build can wear the double-breasted suit becomingly, provided that it is correctly cut and really fits him. This means that the shoulders should be full and the waistline snug and tapering; that, as the saying runs, one must let daylight through the arms by having the sides of the coat curve to the contour of the body.

Another common error is that the double-breasted style is much warmer than the single-breasted. Inasmuch as it is the practice among well-turned-out men to wear their coats buttoned, instead of open, for the sake of greater smartness and trimness of appearance, it is of negligible consequence in actual comfort whether the garment be single-breasted or double. What really counts in coolness is not the cut of your coat, but the weight and weave of the cloth. If it is of light, porous texture, skeleton-trimmed, you will feel at ease, regardless of the particular style you wear.

The double-breasted, two-button suit, portrayed in the accompanying sketch, shows the spruce line of the fashionable summer garment—the wide, low collar, the semi-peaked or peaked lapels; the patch pockets; the fairly broad shoulders; the snugness over the hips; the slightly shorter effect which young men favor for its jaunty look—29½ inches, rather than 30 or 30½.

One of the revived tendencies of style is the raised coat-sleeve instead of the wide, squarish shoulder. Whether the trousers be plain or waistband or pleated is an affair of personal preference, not fixed fashion. The plain effect is usually preferable for hot weather. Trousers are cut straight and measure roundabout 20 inches at the knee and 18 inches at the bottom. One or two double-breasted suits belong in every man's summer wardrobe. They vary the monotony of single-breasted models and permit of a refreshing change.

SECTION TWO

SANTA ANA, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, AUGUST 7, 1925.

S. A. COLORED POPULATION IS NO PROBLEM TO CITY OFFICERS

Negro Group Is Numbered At 100 Persons; Have Own Church and Pastor

LITTLE WORK HERE TO GIVE DARK RACE

Black Residents Are Unassuming and Many Own Property, Bank Account

What is the colored population of Santa Ana? A few years ago there was not enough to furnish pallbearers for a decent funeral. Today their number is sufficient to muster a fair-sized congregation of worshippers, having their own church and pastor.

Yet the gain registered since arrival of the first pioneers some 12 years ago has not been large enough to present a social-economic problem, nor has the voting strength assumed such proportions as to constitute a serious factor in the city's political life.

The Rev. G. W. Hill, pastor of Santa Ana's first colored church, estimates the city's colored population at about 100, half of which is registered on the church books.

Here For 12 Years
Among the first one to arrive here about 12 years ago were Tom Walker, well known "man-about-town," who presides over the shoe-shining parlors located at the Rossmore hotel barber shop, and John J. Wilson, who like his colleague, shines shoes for a living at the Grand Central market.

Santa Ana is not and never will be a colored man's town. The disadvantages outweigh the attractions. It is too far from a transcontinental line to make it a home for Pullman porters. Lack of suitable employment and competition from cheap Mexican labor are other reasons against negro immigration. Janitor work and shoe-shining are about the only occupations that are open to the colored man in these parts.

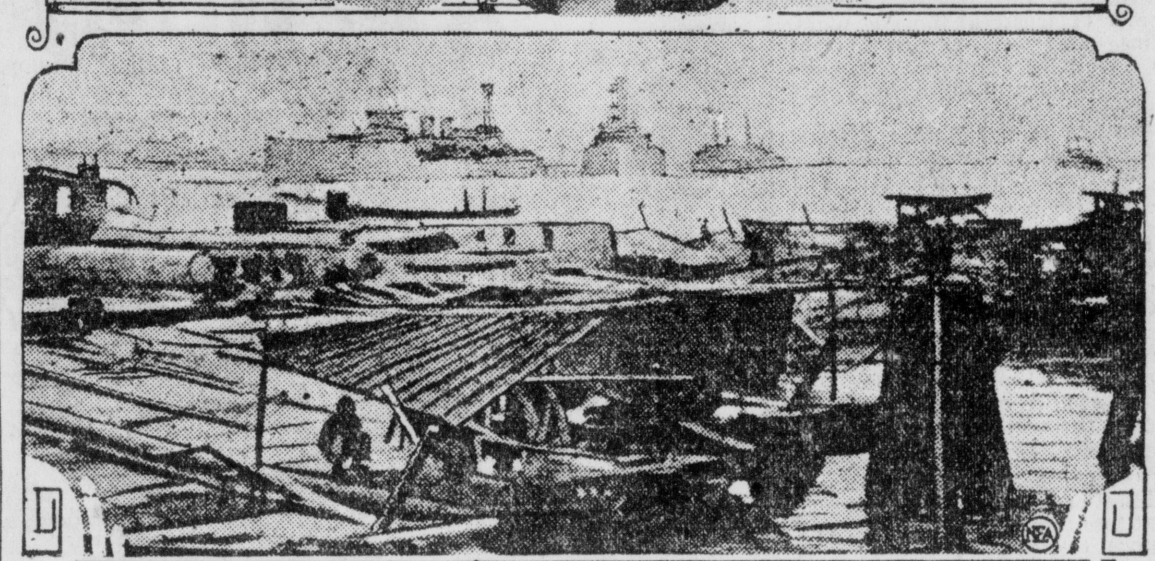

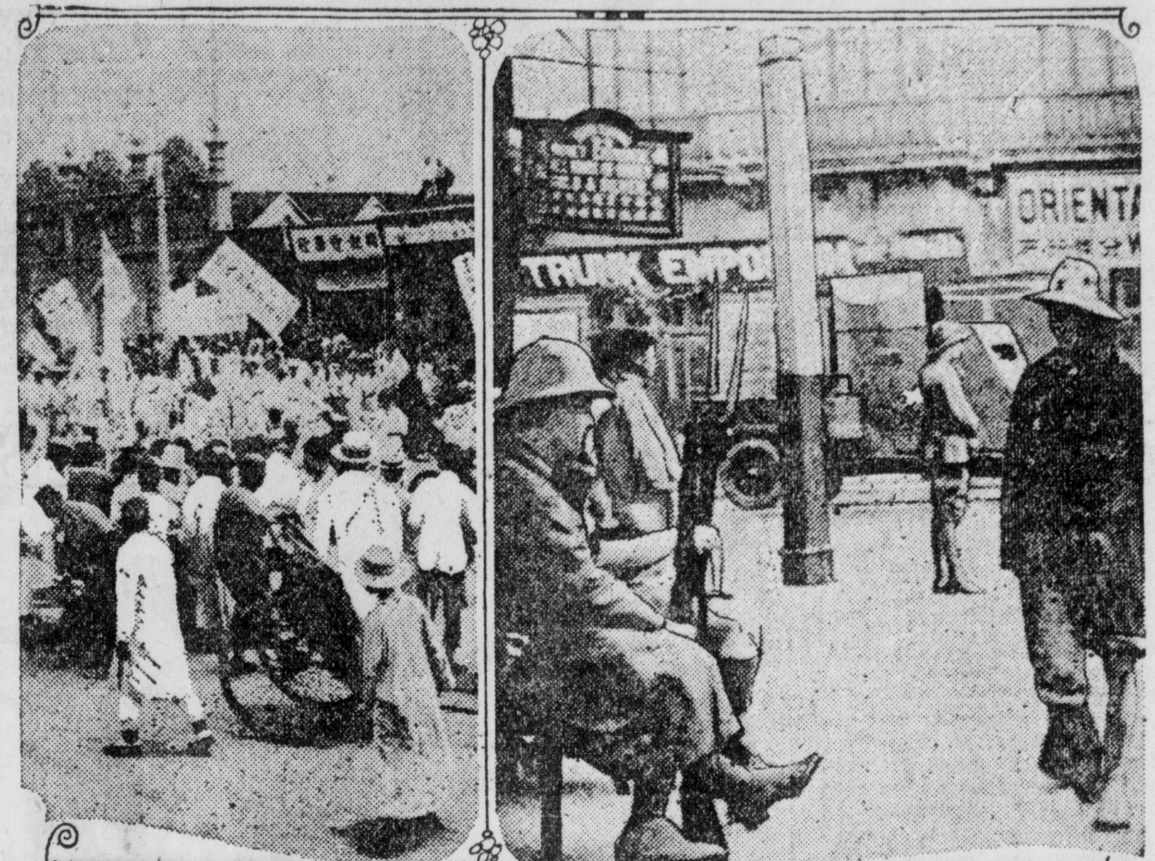

Exceptions to these classifications are those employed as cement workers, garage men and cooks in various establishments throughout the city.

Because of their limited number and lack of permanent employment, there has been no effort to congregate into residence settlements. While most of them live on the west side, others live in other parts of the city.

S. A. Not Worried
Santa Ana is not worried over her colored population. They are quiet, unassuming and law-abiding persons, minding their own business, and giving but little trouble to the authorities. They believe in the bourgeois virtue of hard work as elaborated upon by Benjamin Franklin in "Poor Richard."

FIRE DANGERS ARE TOLD FARM BUREAU

Stressing the dangers from fire, H. Falvey, Fullerton electrician, appeared before the directors of the farm bureau at their monthly session yesterday in the Hall of Records building and asked them to indorse a proposed county electrical ordinance. Falvey declared that, because an inspection is not required, defective wiring is being installed in many farm houses. The directors voted to make the matter a special order of business at their next session, September 3.

The Orange county bureau's quota of the public utility fund of the California Farm Bureau federation has been secured and forwarded to headquarters, it was announced by Secretary A. M. Stanley.

Following the suggestion that the farm bureau donate a cup for presentation at the county fair here September 22 to 26, Director Earl Campbell agreed to give a cup in the name of the bureau. It was announced that eight of the 15 farm centers already have agreed to have exhibits at the fair.

The board adopted a resolution expressing sympathy for J. A. Smiley, past president of the bureau, who was injured recently in an automobile accident.

COUNTY SCHOOL SYSTEM TO GET HALF MILLION

State school money in the amount of $557,456 will be apportioned to Orange county schools during the school year of 1925-26, according to advices received today by R. P. Mitchell, county superintendent of schools, from Will C. Wood, state superintendent of public instruction.

The total sum allowed this county is distributed as follows: Elementary school, $409,623.50. High schools, $114,433. Junior college, $33,400.

Of the total amount set aside for junior colleges, Santa Ana will receive $19,200 and Fullerton, $14,200.

Under the provisions of the California school law, the county board of supervisors must apportion a corresponding amount of county money for the maintenance of elementary schools, and double the amount for support of high schools and junior colleges.

DR. TREMAIN IN SWITZERLAND TELLS OF TRIP

Santa Ana Woman Writes Interestingly of Tour in European Countries

Dr. Mable Vance Tremain, of Santa Ana, who is touring Europe with a party of friends, writes an interesting letter to the Register telling of some of the famous places she has visited since her arrival in the old country. She writes as follows:

"Our tour in Europe has been very successful up to date. Our party is like one big, happy family, congenial and companionable. We left New York City June 26 on the Homeric, a floating palace; the weather was ideal, the sea smooth and little illness. Fred Lewis and his famous jazz orchestra were aboard for London engagements and added greatly to our gaiety. We arrived in Cherbourg July 4 and had a lovely seven hours' ride through a fine agricultural district to Paris.

Paris Proves Interesting
"In Paris, we visited many historical points of interest, grand opera, the Folies and many beautiful shops. Very few people drive their private cars through the streets of Paris, but depend upon taxis, busses, street cars or subway trains. The subway system surpasses that of New York City because of its excellent ventilation and the stations have well lighted white ceilings.

"From Paris we motored to Fontainebleau and Versailles, which were intensely interesting trips.

"After leaving Paris, our next point of interest was The Hague. The peace palace is here and a marvelous piece of architecture and most elaborately furnished. It was given by Carnegie and is now used principally for international conference.

"Amsterdam, called the Venice of the North, is a city built on pillars and has the largest and most handsome theater in the world. We loved Holland. It speaks of history, wealth and aristocracy.

Then Go to Brussels
"From Holland we went to Brussels, where the Germans made their headquarters during the war. In three months' time, 3,000,000 German soldiers marched through this city to the front and demanded food and lodging from the citizens. The Belgians did not resist the advance, and little damage was done here. We visited the shooting gallery where the Germans practiced sharpshooting. In the rear is a bronze statue marking the spot where Elith Cavell lay in a faint for two hours before she was shot.

The German lad who was commanded to kill her refused and he was immediately shot. Garillo Petie, a Belgian spy, and only 22 years of age, suffered the same death as Edith Cavell. These two women, with 33 men, who were killed, were buried here until after the armistice was signed.

"Leaving Brussels, we visited Cologne, Germany, where English soldiers are still stationed, and Coblenz has a French flag flying over the Rhine. Our sail up the Rhine, amid the beautiful scenery and old castles, could not be duplicated anywhere.

Impressed by Heidelberg
"Heidelberg, famous for its university dating back 700 years, and its old castle on the high cliffs, impressed me greatly. We witnessed a duel by the students of the university. A duel mark on the cheek is considered a great honor. After having fought

FIDELITY FIRM HEAD OFFICE TO OPEN HERE

After September 1, the main office of the Fidelity Thrift corporation, now located at 315 South Hill street, Los Angeles, will be situated at 302 North Broadway, Santa Ana, local men having purchased a heavy interest in the firm, it was announced today.

New officers of the corporation are: President, George Ragan, Orange county representative of the Western Loan and Building company of Utah for the last eight years; vice president, Stanley Clem, vice president and sales manager of the Santa Ana Lumber company; secretary and manager of the Los Angeles office, Rex Ragan, formerly deputy collector and division chief of the internal revenue department; treasurer, Homer Chaney, auditor of the First National and Farmers and Merchants banks; attorney, Clyde C. Downing; director, Albin E. Johnson, head of Albin E. Johnson and company, certified public accountants. Other directors will be selected later.

The Fidelity Thrift corporation is a California corporation, having been organized in Los Angeles last February. It is capitalized at $200,000, divided into $100,000 preferred stock and $100,000 common stock.

The local men became financially interested in the corporation a month ago and immediately decided to move the headquarters to Santa Ana, retaining the Los Angeles office as a branch.

ANAHEIM LIONS ARE GUESTS OF SANTA ANA DEN

Liaison—the word coined during the World war to denote contact between friendly forces to further a common objective—may be employed in describing yesterday's weekly luncheon meeting of the Santa Ana Lions club, at St. Ann's Inn.

The gathering designated as "Anaheim day," brought a record attendance, including a large delegation of visiting Lions from the neighboring city, headed by Les Wilson, president of the Anaheim den. The meeting was in every respect a liaison affair, calculated to promote the common aims of the organization. Good fellowship and service to the community formed outstanding themes of discussion.

Business Under Ban
Business had been placed on the verboten list and the only reference to matters of local interest was the announcement by President Harold E. Wahlberg that Mason Yould, assistant managing editor of the Santa Ana Register, had been appointed editor of "The Lion Truth," official organ of the Santa Ana Lions club. He will take the place of Felton Browning, who has been obliged to resign from the editorship for business reasons.

Snappy songs, quick sallies and witty remarks took the place of formal business transactions. From start to finish the program, in charge of the Anaheim delegation under direction of Cal Gibson, was devoted to entertainment and fun-making.

Musical Trio Entertains
A pleasing number on the program was the appearance of a musical trio—comprising Miss Nell Mitchell, Miss Mary McCandless and Miss Virginia Long, of Anaheim, who entertained the Lions with several selections, ranging from the pulse-quickening quiver of jazz to the more classical strains of grand opera.

For a brief period, serious business replaced the general jollification when Vetola Baranowski, a new member of the Anaheim den, was initiated by Cliff Lamb and Rob White, past presidents of the Anaheim organization. Another touch of serious import was given the proceedings when Past President H. B. Van Dien, of the Santa Ana den, recently returned from the national convention held at Cedar Point, called attention to the message of the international president, urging the different Lions clubs to devote more time to the care and welfare of blind people.

Couple Wedded As Wife-Beater Is Sent to Jail

Frank Knapp, employee of a local knitting company, was in the county jail today serving a sentence of 90 days for wife beating. Justice K. E. Morrison found him guilty of a battery charge and pronounced sentence.

The court proceedings, with its disclosure of matrimonial misadventure, failed to daunt a young couple who were among the spectators, waiting for Justice Morrison to wed them.

Although plainly dismayed and exchanging doubtful glances, the prospective bride and bridegroom stood their ground and went through with the ceremony.

Very few persons increase in height after they reach 21.

REPORTER OF FORMER DAYS WRITES ABOUT EARLY CRIMES

Tearing Down of Old Jail Recalls Newspaper Experiences to J. B. Joplin

PRISONER IS HANGED TO TELEPHONE POLE

Murders and Lynching In Orange County Reviewed By Pioneer News Writer

Editor's Note—John B. Joplin, now of County Treasurer J. C. Joplin, after witnessing prisoners raising the old county jail, recalled some of the by-gone days when the battle was one of the most modern in Southern California. At the time of the building of the jail, he was a newspaper reporter and his "beat" took in the editor's office now being torn down. He recalls the old days in the following article:

By JOHN B. JOPLIN
The old county jail, wedged in between the courthouse and the new Hall of Records, will soon pass into history.

This jail was built several years after the county's first murder, which occurred not long after separating from Los Angeles county—the most gruesome and cold-blooded in its history—that of Mr. and Mrs. Hitchcock on a ranch near Garden Grove by a fiend named Anschlag, who killed the couple with an ax and tried to obtain possession of their property.

It was also built after the killing of McKelvey, Modjeska ranch foreman, by Torres, a Mexican-Indian. Torres later was taken from the old city jail on Sycamore street, in the block across from the Register building, and hanged by a mob to a telephone pole near the corner of Fourth and Sycamore streets.

Recalls Old Crimes
As one of the few newspaper reporters who covered the "beats" at the time the old jail was built and first occupied as a housing place for Orange county criminals, some of those who were confined there and their crimes are recalled to me.

This was during the year 1898. J. C. Nichols was sheriff and N. A. Alm jailer at the time. The jail was finished and occupied a year or more before the courthouse was built. On the hunt for copy in those days, news gatherers fre-

WEST END THEATER

Colleen Moore, star of "The Desert Flower," now showing at the West End theater, is credited with "spotting" several promising beginners in her recent productions and in having virtually constituted herself sponsor for these budding careers.

For instance, appearing in "The Desert Flower" is Florence Ann Ulrich, a sister of Lenore Ulrich, the Belasco star. There is, also, Carlo Schipa, a brother of Tito Schipa, the famous tenor of the Metropolitan. He played a violin in a musical combination which specialized in playing on movie

"sets" when Miss Moore first saw him.

Delving further, one finds that Clive Morrison, a promising player of "bits," owes his liberation from the ranks of the "extras" to Miss Moore—though, perhaps, in this connection a bit of sisterly solicitude may have been admixed to her professional judgment, as Clive is her brother.

Baby Mary Louise Miller, if she continues to bask in the Kleigs when she grows up, can also thank Miss Moore for acting as godmother to her career. She makes her debut in "The Desert Flower."

WALKER'S THEATER

"No type of drama affords the wide range of acting that melodrama offers," says Matt Moore, who appears opposite Mae Busch in "The Unholy Three," a crook drama now being shown at Walker's theater.

"The public demands thrills. It gets them in melodrama. It wants real suspense and no other brand of dramatics is so filled with thrills and human interest as the crook play that borders on two worlds in which we live."

"Picture-goers have demanded and received many new types of drama but it has never let go its interest in melodrama. I believe that class of picture will sustain a longer run than any other because everybody is an adventurer at heart no matter in how drab an actual world he may exist."

"A story of crooks is a story of human interest and nothing in a modern motion picture draws better than human interest. Other types of plays are what might be termed as 'class plays' because they appeal to a certain type of fan."

"Melodrama appeals to everybody because it has elements of all other dramas combined. There is comedy, tragedy and a fine opportunity for all grades and degrees of acting."

Other members of "The Unholy Three" cast are: Lon Chaney, Mae Busch, Victor McLaglen, Harry Earles and Mathew Betz.

YOST THEATER

Bessie Love scores the hit of her career with her performance of Teita, the South Sea girl of "Soul Fire," Richard Barthelmess' new offering at the Yost theater.

Miss Love's portrayal touches heights of pathos and emotionalism. Indeed, the New York critics pronounced it one of the best characterizations of the entire screen year. Coupled with Barthelmess' fine work as Eric Fane, a musical genius, in this production, rated by the metropolitan reviewers as the most extraordinary work film portrait of his brilliant career, "Soul Fire," can well be said to be the best acted motion picture of the season. Aside from the brilliant acting of Barthelmess and Miss Love, fine performances are contributed by Helen Ware, Harriet Sterling, Walter Long, Effie Shannon, Lee Baker and other members

JULIAN ERECTS NEW OIL RIG AT COSTA MESA

COSTA MESA, Aug. 7.—Another oil derrick went up yesterday west of here on the property recently said to have been taken over from the Rosenberg company by the Julian Petroleum corporation.

The new rig is near the Costa Mesa No. 1 well, which is pumping oil at a depth of 630 feet.

Drilling operations are expected to begin immediately. The well is the first of the two new derricks that are to be put down by the Julian corporation. Another well is to be drilled on the reservoir site of the lease, it is announced.

On the former Rosenberg property two wells are already drilled. Oil is being pumped from the Costa Mesa No. 1 and tests of the oil strata are being made in the Fairview Farms well No. 1.

Trustees Confer On Purchase of Tract from P. E.

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 7.—Committee members appointed by city board of trustees went into the conference yesterday at Los Angeles to present the proposed plan of acquiring the street car right-of-way through Balboa for the relief of traffic congestion.

The report of the committee will be made at the meeting of the board of trustees Monday night. Those who went to Los Angeles to submit the suggested plan were J. P. Greeley, George Neill and Norman Robotham.

Officials of the Pacific Electric company at the conference were D. W. Pontius, vice president, and H. O. Marler, assistant traffic manager.

Solution of the serious traffic problem at Balboa is being sought by establishing an unobstructed 60-foot highway through the city. It is proposed to transfer the Pacific Electric street car tracks from Central avenue to the half block section of property adjoining on the north.

of the unusual cast.

Miss Lowe has had many excellent hits to her credit in her years before the camera, but none of them equal her Teita in "Soul Fire."

If properly cared for, a permanent magnet will retain the property of magnetism for several years.

DO GOATS really EAT TIN CANS?

No, that's just a superstition fostered by the comic strips. And the idea that there is something mysteriously better about "eastern" automobile lubricants simply because they are made in the east and cost more is another superstition—which a majority of motorists in the Pacific Coast states have come to disregard.

No, Nor Do Eastern Oils Lubricate Better

As a matter of fact, the best and most suitable crude petroleum for the manufacture of a motor oil, is obtained from Pacific Coast wells. Zerolene, made from this naphthenic base crude, carefully selected and refined by our patented high-vacuum process, not only costs less but lubricates better.

Zerolene Successfully Lubricates ALL Makes of Cars

If you have been paying high prices for eastern oils—think what a "lubrication census" of the automobiles in any large western city would show: Zerolene successfully lubricating every make of car in use—high priced and low—more cars than any other oil made.

Why Experienced Automobile Men Say—"Use Zerolene"

Zerolene increases gasoline mileage, reduces carbon troubles, and

Insist on Zerolene—even if it does cost less lengthens the life of the engine; and because it does—automobile agencies and big users of such celebrated makes as Cadillac, Chrysler, Dodge, Lincoln, Oakland, Packard, Pierce-Arrow, Willys-Knight, etc., unhesitatingly say—"Use Zerolene."

Why pay tribute to superstition? Insist on Zerolene—even if it does cost less. Always ask for Zerolene by name.

Get the facts!

A series of independent and impartial reports showing the experience of large users with Zerolene motor oil has been collected in our booklet, "Why Pay Tribute to a Superstition?" Ask any Standard Oil Company representative or Zerolene dealer for a copy.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief for Acid Indigestion

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion. Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bismarck's Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of stomach acidity, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antacid, such as Bismarck's Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form, enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestants. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bismarck's Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

156 ORPHAN CHILDREN FROM COVINA MASONIC HOME ENJOY SELVES ON CHANNEL ISLAND

Being an orphan isn't so bad when there is not one, but a thousand papas to supply pop. So say the 156 children who live at the Masonic summer camp on Channel Island, Balboa.

During the three hot summer months the orphans of the Masonic home at Covina come to Balboa to enjoy all the pleasures of a beach outing.

This year the camp was established in permanent quarters with the erection of eight dormitories for the boys and girls and construction of four other camp buildings at a total estimated expenditure of $10,000.

Complete Self-Government
A complete self-government is organized among the children in the camp. They have their own officers and hold councils to settle questions that arise in camp.

Miss Eva Shipley is the president. Other officers at the head of the camp government are Nephi Kuykendall, vice president, and Miss Regina Scheppeler and Harvey Sherrer, secretaries.

All the activities of a miniature city are engaged in by the camp members, even so far as publishing a little paper, "Camp Crumbs." Everything is done under a definite system, directed by Mrs. Maude Moore, superintendent.

So regular are events that the time of day can be told by what is happening. Camp visitors set their watches when the "chow" bells ring at 9 o'clock and then it is that the camp becomes more quiet "than a mouse" for all its populace. Rigid discipline is enforced by regulations for the best interests of the camp.

Recently the formal dedication of the camp was observed with 60 Masons from throughout the state present for the ceremonies. David J. Reese, grand master of California, and M. J. Newberg, president of the Past Master's association, took in the dedication.

Gala Day in Camp
The celebration was a gala day for the camp. For 13 years, the Covina children have come to the camp for the summer vacation and it was only this year that permanent buildings were completed.

"We enjoy camp immensely," declares the president, Miss Shipley. "We have all sorts of fun in water games, beach campfires, and recreation programs in our hall."

Almost every week end, Masons supply treats for all in camp. Last week at the big celebration they brought down 1200 bottles of pop and we had a "big time," the girl president continued.

Of the 156 children in the camp, 83 are girls and 73 are boys. In addition, the camp is open over the week end to working boys, who formerly attended the Masonic home.

Enjoy Forbidden Sports
One of the best of the forbidden sports of the boys is administering a ducking to one of their members, fully clothed.

"It's great fun," said one lad, even though he happened to be the victim.

And the laundry shows the results of the water escapades. Changes two or three times a week for the boys makes the laundry pile all out of due proportion, says Mrs. Moore.

"Boys will be boys," she adds, "and although we make an effort to maintain strict discipline, we permit the children to have all the pleasure possible."

REPORTER OF FORMER DAYS IN CRIME RESUME

quently accompanied the jailer, who also was the only court bailiff, and most of the time the officer in charge of prisoners, and from the jail to courtrooms, which was on the second floor and in the middle of the block on the south side of the street between Spurgeon and French streets, a distance of about eight blocks.

It was during the first 12 months in the jail that Cook took charge that several prisoners who made a prominent part in Orange county's criminal history shared his hospitality for a short time at least.

Interview Tom Cook
During that time, Tom Cook drove a fast team of bays hitched to a light buggy, into Santa Ana from the peat lands that memorable afternoon after shooting down his neighbor, Jack Grigsby, and left him dying in the road, to give himself up to the jailer, John Nourse, who has for years been a high-salaried employee of Hearst, then with the Santa Ana Blade, and myself interviewed Cook there.

The quiet-spoken man, who only an hour before had slipped his smoking revolver back into its holster, sat on the edge of a prison cot calmly smoking a cigar, and refused to discuss the killing in any way. Cook came here from Texas and shootings were commonplace occurrences to him.

The man was defended by Le Comte Davis, well known Los Angeles criminal attorney, and Victor Montgomery, an old-time Orange county lawyer, who died several years ago, and tried before the Hon. J. W. Ballard, then superior court judge. He was acquitted by a jury after a sensational trial.

Cook Mysteriously Slain
The same Cook was killed by a pistol bullet fired into his forehead, as he lay asleep on a cot in a hallway in his home about 12 months later, supposedly by his wife, with whom he had quarreled. Mrs. Cook anyway went to the jail and gave herself up. She was tried and acquitted by a jury in the same court, the same two lawyers who defended her husband having charge of her case.

All the particulars of this killing, according to many old-time residents of the west-of-the-river district, did not come out at the trial. By some of them it is believed the real facts never will be made public. A man named Barton, employed on the Cook ranch at the time as a teamster, was one of the principal witnesses at the trial. His testimony corroborated married the widow and the two left the country. Barton afterward studied law and was admitted to the bar in an eastern state.

It was in the old Orange county jail, too, during that year, that one of the gamest human beings I ever saw—a Chinaman at that—stayed a few weeks as a hospital patient, while recovering from wounds he received in a terrible beating at the hands of a couple of Mexican wood choppers. The poor "Chink" presented a sad spectacle and had little life left in him when the Mexicans got through with him.

If I remember correctly, his name was Tom and we who got to know him were astonished at him and admired his courage.

Foreman On Beach Ranch
Tom was foreman for W. T. Newland on a big willow-covered ranch located in the lowlands near where the town of Huntington Beach now stands. As boss of the job he had charge of a big gang of Mexicans employed in clearing this land. The Chinaman had one idea only, that of having a good job done. The choppers lived with their families in camps scattered among the willows.

Foreman Tom allotted each workman or group of them a certain acreage to clear at an agreed price. When the job was finished, the workers got their pay and a new contract—not before.

He had had trouble with two of them over one of these allotments. The pair caught him away from his cabin one night and tried to murder the Chinaman. Tom fought them back until knocked unconscious from a blow over the head. The weapon used was a most cruel one—a heavy strip of leather into which were braided leaden pellets the size of large marbles about an inch apart. Each blow cut and tore flesh from the poor Chinaman's skull. After finishing the foreman, the Mexicans dragged what they supposed was a dead body into the bushes fled.

Gropes Way Through Trees
Several hours later, the Chinaman was found groping his way through the willows, trying to find his way to his cabin to get a pistol to finish the fight with his assailants. Both eyes were swollen shut, his face and scalp cut to pieces, clothing torn off him and even his cherished queue was gone.

Jailer Ulm, who responded to the call for an officer, arrested the two Mexicans single handed, pulling them from their tents sometime between midnight and daylight and taking them to jail. On trial, charged with attempt to murder, they were found guilty and sentenced to seven years each in San Quentin penitentiary.

It was in the same jail a few months later that a desperado named Hancock, who afterward was hung in the state of Nevada for the cowardly murder of two travelers, was confined for several months.

Hancock, a boarding-house keeper in the oil fields at Oilinda, had been arrested with a charge of chicken stealing against him. A woman who had accompanied him on a trip through the Nevada desert a couple of years previous, and who had been an eye-witness to the killing, turned against him. She went to Edgar Johnson, then justice of the peace of Fullerton township, which was afterward investigated by the Nevada authorities and found to be true, although not so much attention was paid to the weird tale when the woman first told it.

Two Men Murdered
Hancock, the woman and a small child were traveling together by wagon through Nevada wastes when they met Dr. Engle, a Riverside veterinarian, and a companion named Edminston. The two parties traveled and camped together for several days. At daylight one morning, Hancock murdered the two men as they lay in their blankets, using an ax to batter in their skulls. The desperado buried the bodies in the sand, burned their wagon, and went on with the dead men's horses which he traded or sold.

Hancock was tried in Orange county for chicken stealing, found guilty and sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary. He would not discuss the murder with either Nourse or myself while confined in the jail here, but while on his way to San Quentin, in charge of Ulm, and while waiting between trains at a Los Angeles depot, he confessed to Ulm and Allen Kelley, a well known coast newspaperman, at the time city editor of the Los Angeles Times.

On his release from the California penitentiary, Hancock's freedom was short lived. A Nevada sheriff met him at the gate as he came out with a warrant for his arrest on the then seven or eight-year-old murder charge. Ulm, Kelley and the woman were witnesses at the trial. The jury's verdict was murder in the first degree and the desperado went to his doom on the gallows a couple of months later.

Several hours later, the Chinaman was found groping his way through the willows, trying to find his way to his cabin to get a pistol to finish the fight with his assailants. Both eyes were swollen shut, his face and scalp cut to pieces, clothing torn off him and even his cherished queue was gone.

Jailer Ulm, who responded to the call for an officer, arrested the two Mexicans single handed, pulling them from their tents sometime between midnight and daylight and taking them to jail. On trial, charged with attempt to murder, they were found guilty and sentenced to seven years each in San Quentin penitentiary.

It was in the same jail a few months later that a desperado named Hancock, who afterward was hung in the state of Nevada for the cowardly murder of two travelers, was confined for several months.

Hancock, a boarding-house keeper in the oil fields at Oilinda, had been arrested with a charge of chicken stealing against him. A woman who had accompanied him on a trip through the Nevada desert a couple of years previous, and who had been an eye-witness to the killing, turned against him. She went to Edgar Johnson, then justice of the peace of Fullerton township, which was afterward investigated by the Nevada authorities and found to be true, although not so much attention was paid to the weird tale when the woman first told it.

Two Men Murdered
Hancock, the woman and a small child were traveling together by wagon through Nevada wastes when they met Dr. Engle, a Riverside veterinarian, and a companion named Edminston. The two parties traveled and camped together for several days. At daylight one morning, Hancock murdered the two men as they lay in their blankets, using an ax to batter in their skulls. The desperado buried the bodies in the sand, burned their wagon, and went on with the dead men's horses which he traded or sold.

Hancock was tried in Orange county for chicken stealing, found guilty and sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary. He would not discuss the murder with either Nourse or myself while confined in the jail here, but while on his way to San Quentin, in charge of Ulm, and while waiting between trains at a Los Angeles depot, he confessed to Ulm and Allen Kelley, a well known coast newspaperman, at the time city editor of the Los Angeles Times.

On his release from the California penitentiary, Hancock's freedom was short lived. A Nevada sheriff met him at the gate as he came out with a warrant for his arrest on the then seven or eight-year-old murder charge. Ulm, Kelley and the woman were witnesses at the trial. The jury's verdict was murder in the first degree and the desperado went to his doom on the gallows a couple of months later.

The same Cook was killed by a pistol bullet fired into his forehead, as he lay asleep on a cot in a hallway in his home about 12 months later, supposedly by his wife, with whom he had quarreled. All the particulars of this killing, according to many old-time residents of the west-of-the-river district, did not come out at the trial. By some of them it is believed the real facts never will be made public. A man named Barton, employed on the Cook ranch at the time as a teamster, was one of the principal witnesses at the trial. His testimony corroborated married the widow and the two left the country. Barton afterward studied law and was admitted to the bar in an eastern state.

It was in the old Orange county jail, too, during that year, that one of the gamest human beings I ever saw—a Chinaman at that—stayed a few weeks as a hospital patient, while recovering from wounds he received in a terrible beating at the hands of a couple of Mexican wood choppers. The poor "Chink" presented a sad spectacle and had little life left in him when the Mexicans got through with him.

If I remember correctly, his name was Tom and we who got to know him were astonished at him and admired his courage.

Foreman On Beach Ranch
Tom was foreman for W. T. Newland on a big willow-covered ranch located in the lowlands near where the town of Huntington Beach now stands. As boss of the job he had charge of a big gang of Mexicans employed in clearing this land. The Chinaman had one idea only, that of having a good job done. The choppers lived with their families in camps scattered among the willows.

Foreman Tom allotted each workman or group of them a certain acreage to clear at an agreed price. When the job was finished, the workers got their pay and a new contract—not before.

He had had trouble with two of them over one of these allotments. The pair caught him away from his cabin one night and tried to murder the Chinaman. Tom fought them back until knocked unconscious from a blow over the head. The weapon used was a most cruel one—a heavy strip of leather into which were braided leaden pellets the size of large marbles about an inch apart. Each blow cut and tore flesh from the poor Chinaman's skull. After finishing the foreman, the Mexicans dragged what they supposed was a dead body into the bushes fled.

buy butter

THE WAY THE EXPERTS DO ★

Butter experts "buy butter by "score." They grade values by flavor, "body," color, salt-content and package. On every point they must be SURE.

Of course, no one expects you to "score" each pound of butter you buy—even if you had time to do it.

Yet you can be just as SURE of butter quality as the experts. And if you really want the highest butter quality, here's a sure way of buying it.

Golden State Butter is graded "High Score" by experts' exacting tests. It has set the standard in butter quality for 21 years.

Butter experts unhesitatingly recommend it—because they know its quality.

Let their "O. K." be your butter guide. INSIST (it pays!) on getting Golden State from your grocer.

14 MILES OF PAVED HIGHWAY COMPLETED DURING LAST YEAR BY COUNTY ROAD DEPARTMENT

Conspicuous among the summaries recently compiled by county offices is that of the road department, which today announced that nearly 14 miles of new paved road were constructed in Orange county during the last year. In addition to this new paving, more than four miles of road were thickened or widened. All of the new paving was done under assessment districts and county aid, while the work of remodeling the old highways was financed by special bond issues.

The longest stretch of new road built last year by the department was on West Seventeenth street. Five miles of concrete paving were laid in this job. North street, northeast of Anaheim, is another new concrete road which was built in the last year. It is a mile in length.

Tustin avenue and Santa Clara avenue also were paved with asphaltic concrete to the widths of 16 and 18 feet, respectively. The Buena Park road and Placentia streets were among the larger contracts let during the year. Fairview avenue and the Hansen road add more than two miles to the total.

Traffic Necessitates Widening. Increased traffic necessitated the widening of 6000 feet of Santa Ana canyon highway from a 16 to an 18-foot thoroughfare. Likewise, the Santiago boulevard was widened for a length of nearly two-thirds of a mile. Verano street, which approaches Garden Grove from the south, was one of the roads exposed to heavy traffic and required thickening.

All the construction work was done under contract, two inspectors from the county road department being kept busy most of the time. About the same amount of concrete and asphaltic concrete was laid last year. Although authorities disagree as to just what is the best all-around paving material, concrete is the favorite material. According to J. L. McBride, county engineer, the concrete pavement constructed this year will not have the objectionable feature of rough tar connections. These, he says, although they may be only a quarter or an eighth of an inch above the surface of the concrete, are sufficient to make heavy vehicles bounce over them and damage the pavement on the further side. Inspectors have been instructed to disallow any rough connections in this county.

Financed by Budget. All the roads constructed by the county are financed by a special budget, which provides for the maintenance of the main strip of paving itself, and also the "shoulder." This term, in road department parlance, means the curb, or the cement or dirt binding at the edge of the paved way. The "shoulder," no matter how it may be built, will eventually require additional attention and maintenance, and it is remembered in the road budget.

Hundreds of men were employed in the construction of roads in Orange county last year. The new road-building program, as embodied in the plans of the supervisors, will be awaited with interest, one county official said today. "It may be more than 14 miles next year," he said. The road budget, as formulated by Engineer McBride, was presented to the board of supervisors last week.

Buys Out Partners' Interest In Shop

Wilbur Getty, commander of the Santa Ana post, American Legion, has purchased the interest of his partner, E. C. Greeley, in the G. and G. Metal shop, 419 East Fourth street, and has taken active charge as sole owner, according to an announcement made today.

The business specializes in unit heating systems, sheet metal and heating contracts and has been a growing concern since founded here five years ago.

Greeley will leave within a few days for a month's trip through the northern part of the state, and to his former home at Klamath Falls, Ore. He also will visit at Crater lake and other points of interest. No definite business plans have been announced by him.

Father Was First To Ape Offspring

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Those who reproach "mother" for dressing like her daughter are sharply reminded by a London fashion expert that "father" beat her to it 30 years ago.

"The head of the house," says this writer, judicially, "discarded many years ago the uncomfortable morning coat and the equally uncomfortable frock coat which were then de rigueur in town, and adopted his small son's comfortable costume, the round suit of serge and even the flannels. And the soft turned down collar which he now wears was copied outright from the Eton collar worn by his boy."

He should not reproach his helpmate if she too obeys the instinct for comfort and freedom in clothes.

Cherries Are Only Pear Tree Fruit

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 8.—The secretary of the state horticultural society has received from Ed Nye, a resident of Fairfield, a cutting from a pear tree that is filled with large golden cherries, with a request that he explain the phenomenon. Mr. Nye writes that the tree has borne pears in past years and still looks like a pear tree, but that this year all the fruit that appeared on it were these cherries, of which there was a fair yield. It is supposed that at some time or another a cherry limb was grafted to the tree, and, in the evolutionary process, has just now reached the cherry-bearing stage.

OLD SCHOONER AT BALBOA MAY STAY ON SAND

BALBOA, Aug. 7.—By slow degree, the movie schooner, Muriel, aground on the sand bar at the harbor entrance to Newport bay, is being beaten back toward the shore.

At low tide, the boat that figured in filming of "Sea Hawk" can be boarded from dry land. After resting on the bar for over a month, the ship has been practically abandoned until the government steps in to attempt to move her.

Observations made by Antares De-raga, in charge of the United States weather station here, indicate that the schooner is gradually retreating toward land at each tide.

Removal May Be Required. In the present situation, the boat is said to be no menace to navigation but it is thought that the United States engineers will cause her removal as an obstruction in the channel before the dredging work at the harbor entrance is undertaken.

The observations taken by De-raga are being reported to the government engineers. According to him, it would be impossible to have the boat dynamited because the floating wreckage would endanger navigation through the entrance.

Movie companies have made advances to R. J. Shafer, owner of the boat, to buy it for a scene. Shafer said that the offers had not been satisfactory and he intended to let the boat remain at present on the sand bar.

If the government engineers decide to act they will tow the schooner off the bar and send her on the rocks outside the entrance, De-raga indicated.

Bathers climb over the ship where she now rests. Concern is felt for the safety of the explorers from the danger that the huge mast may fall. A sharp watch over the boat is maintained when the weekend crowds come to the beach.

Recent high tides have aided in forcing the Muriel back on the bar. There is not a power boat in Newport bay that is able to tug her free.

Was Stranded July 3. The schooner became stranded when she was being taken out of the harbor on July 3 for anchoring off Balboa pier to be used as a fishing barge. A heavy swell caught her at the entrance, snapped the tow line and tossed her on the bar.

Later attempts to move her prove of no avail. Damage caused by the waves has been slight, according to examinations. The rudder was carried away and some planking in the bottom has broken but the old windjammer has successfully resisted the beating of the waves.

HARTRANFT WILL TALK AT J. C. OF C.

Wild game hunting in South America, as seen and practiced by Assemblyman S. C. Hartranft, of Fullerton, will be discussed by him at the dinner meeting of the Junior chamber of commerce in Ketter's cafe Monday night. It was said today by Bruce Switzer, secretary.

Other numbers on the program include cornet solos by Prof. C. Cianfoni, leader of the municipal band; violin solos by Thelma Heidt, and several readings. The committee in charge of the meeting consists of Allison Honer, chairman; R. C. Edwards, L. C. Masters, T. Jensen and Howard Barrows.

Wild duck will be the piece de resistance at the dinner, it was said. Dinner will be served promptly at 6:30 o'clock.

Lemon Juice Whitens Skin

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard-White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quart of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier. Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms, and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach.

You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

EXTENSION OF BALBOA PIER IS SUGGESTED

BALBOA, Aug. 7.—Extension of the pier here to a length of 1000 feet is being proposed. It was learned here today. Efforts are under way to have the project approved this year and construction started immediately.

The present pier is approximately half the length of the new structure being contemplated. Soundings of the water have shown that 95 feet piles will take the pier out 1000 feet.

If the proposal is accepted, this beach will have one of the longest piers on the coast, it is said. Fishing will rival that at Newport Beach, according to the claims of those backing the extension.

Under existing conditions, the pier here is declared to be of little value. The length to which it extends into the ocean does not reach the stream in which the fish are to be found.

As a result of the short length of the pier, fishing is negligible. To remedy this condition the extension, it is claimed, will draw throngs of people who have neglected this beach because of lack of fishing advantages.

Steps to bring the question before the Balboa voters are being considered. A hearing on the formation of an assessment district is the first move contemplated.

The district to be taxed for the project would extend from Alvarado street to the peninsula point. Voters in this section will be called upon to decide whether the work is to be undertaken.

PLAN 'OLD TIMERS' BALL GAME AUGUST 16

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

Feminine influence has become an important factor in shaping destinies of the professional prize ring.

Benny Leonard gave up the lightweight championship and vacated a title that would have been worth at least $100,000 for several years to come because his mother wanted him to quit.

Tom Gibbons gave up the game because his wife's health had been wrecked by worry and he was good for about $25,000 to $50,000 a year.

Jack Dempsey hasn't retired yet but when he does decide to quit fighting it will be out of deference to the wishes of his wife.

With very few exceptions there are no mothers or wives who are happy with a fighter in the family. It is no longer a social brand against the family but the risk involved brings about constant worry.

There were some exceptions. Ruby Bob Fitzsimmons' wife was said to have been a great fan and took an active part in the career of her husband.

Ma Stribling brought up her Willie to be a fighter and she is always in the corner back of him when he fights.

Midget Smith's sister used to train him and act in his corner when she was permitted. But there are few other prominent examples.

Mrs. Harry Wills is actively interested in her husband's business, but she does not make herself conspicuous. She always managed his training camp when he was preparing for an important fight and she handles most of the household's business.

When Wills signed a contract to meet Charlie Weibert for the Italian Hospital Fund, he was promised 20 per cent of the receipts.

He was asked later to take a five per cent cut through the fear that the show wasn't going to be a big success unless another feature was put on the program.

According to the story passed around after the fight, Paddy Mullins, his manager, said it would be alright. Wills said it was O. K. with him. But Mrs. Wills said: "Nothing doing." There was nothing doing. They put up a fight for their full payment and the New York Boxing Commission ordered the promoters to pay the full amount promised.

The influence of matrimony on Jack Dempsey was most pronounced. When he married Estelle Taylor, the movie actress, he reached a turning point in his career.

His marriage, it is generally understood, broke up the "Two Jacks"—Dempsey and Kearns—the most successful partnership in the history of the ring. They worked up from the bottom and became practically millionaires, but when a Mrs. Dempsey appeared they were parted.

The heavyweight champion's wife is not of the movie flapper type. She is a very practical business woman and it is understood she suggested that if her husband was to continue boxing he should work alone and get all the purse money instead of splitting half of it with a business manager.

The feminine influence in the career of Tom Gibbons may have kept him from becoming a champion. He was too much of a home man and the refinement of an ideal home life removed from him that savage instinct that a champion fighter must have.

Gibbons was never happy when he was away from his charming wife and his five little sons. He took the whole family with him when he went to Shelby and he was so contented in his training that he put up the best fight of his career against Dempsey.

He brought his wife and his twin babies to New York last winter when he was training for the fight with Kid Norfolk and he looked like a champion in beating the negro light heavyweight.

He would have had his family around him when he trained for the fight with Gene Tunney, but his wife suffered a nervous breakdown and had to go to the hospital.

She suffered a serious relapse on the night of the fight and it worried Gibbons so he acted as if he were in a trance when he entered the ring and he was knocked out for the first time in his career.

"I'll never fight till Helen gets well," Tom told friends after the fight and added, "after a moment—'Maybe I'd better quit anyway.'"

Tom said that his wife never had expressed any desire to him for him to quit the game and that she had never shown any objection to his business. But when she was here last winter she told a friend—"I will be so happy when 'Tim' gets through."

Encountering unexpected opposition, the Excelsior Creamery company team, one of the leading contenders for the city indoor baseball championship, was forced to its utmost at Poly park last night to defeat Olive, 5 to 4, in nine innings of exciting play.

The visitors got a run in the first inning and the Excelsiors tied it up in the eighth. Olive came back in the ninth and pushed around two more tallies but the Santa Ana club came back with four in its half. Hits by Jiles, Bergman, Hendricks and Babcock won the contest.

Washburn, Olive chucker, held the locals to one hit for seven innings. Bergman also was in good form, fanning 21 of the aliens.

S. A. CYCLISTS TO RIDE IN STATE CHAMPIONSHIP RACES

At least nine Santa Ana boys will carry the colors of the Orange Blossom Wheelmen in the California state bicycle championship races at Culver City, Sunday.

The local entrants have been in training for several months for this paddling classic and are expected to figure strongly in the final ratings.

In an exclusive interview today, Dempsey denied that he had signed articles of agreement with Floyd Fitzsimmons to meet Wills at Michigan City and declared the match was still wide open to the promoter who could make the highest bid for his services.

The champion said, however, that Fitzsimmons was the heaviest bidder to date, and that the Michigan City promoter, if he can sign Wills, would undoubtedly be ring-master for the Wills-Dempsey match when it is staged next summer.

"I have signed with no one and made terms with no promoter," declared Dempsey. "The match with Wills is still open to the highest bidder."

"Fitzsimmons has offered me a flat guarantee of $1,000,000, and if he gets Paddy Mullins' signature showing me that Wills will fight for him, we will undoubtedly come to an agreement and the match will be staged in Floyd's arena in Michigan City."

"The first promoter who shows me Mullins' signature and accompanies it with a guarantee of at least $1,000,000 gets the fight. That goes for Tex Rickard, Jimmy DeFesto, Fitzsimmons and all the others bidding for the match."

Fitzsimmons left today for New York to make Mullins an offer for Wills' end of the proposed bout. He took with him a piece of stationery signed by Dempsey, agreeing to fight in Fitzsimmons' arena for $1,000,000 with a certain percentage of the gate receipts, providing the Michigan City promoter gets Wills' agreement to the match.

Dempsey made it clear, however, that his promise to Fitzsimmons was in no way binding, and that if any other promoter offers him better terms in the meantime it will alter the situation.

The champion figures that his negro next summer will draw $3,000,000 at the gate. He wants a guarantee of $1,000,000, and in addition a good slice of the gate in the event it runs higher than the first million.

"This will be a $3,000,000 fight," Dempsey continued, "and I expect to make at least $1,000,000 out of it for myself."

Beginning with the east-west matches, the star players will be engaged almost continuously in major tournaments until mid-September when the men's national championship finishes the season.

Coming just as they do this year immediately after the trials for the Davis cup team, the east-west matches will be of more than ordinary interest.

The committee of the tennis association which is to pick the team that will defend the Davis cup already probably has made up its mind but no announcement is to be made until August 20.

William Tilden, world's champion, is a cinch to be No. 1. The No. 2 honor will depend upon the result of a singles match tomorrow afternoon between Vinnie Richards and Bill Johnston, the second and third rankings American players. Dick Williams probably will be given the fourth place on the team.

Tilden and Johnston, who defeated Richards and Williams in two out of three matches during the trials no doubt will be assigned to play the double match in the challenge round for the cup.

Today's matches will bring together Dr. George King and John Hennessy, the young Indianapolis star, and Manuel Alonzo, the Spanish Davis cup player, and Cranston Holman, the California collegian.

Richards and Williams will play against Billy Johnston and Peck Griffin and Tilden and young George Lott will meet the Kinsey brothers of California.

Crack riders from all over the state are beginning to arrive in the Southland and heated North vs. South competition is looked for.

The state senior and junior championships will be invited to compete in the national championship contests at St. Louis, Mo. Gold medals, each set with a diamond, will be awarded to each state champion. Silver medals, set with a blue sapphire, will go to the second highest scorer and the third highest will receive a bronze medal set with a ruby, in each age class.

Pounding "Daddy" Vance hard in the pinches, the Pirates beat the Robins 4 to 1 and increased their lead over the Giants to two and a half games.

The Senators moved up to within a game of the leading Athletics by taking a double header from the Browns, 5 to 4 and 10 to 3. Reuther and Walter Johnson pitched the winners.

The Indians knocked Harris off the mound and won the first game of a double header from the Athletics 9 to 2 and 10 to 3. The second and the A's won, 6 to 1.

Gehrig's triple with the bases filled and Johnson's homer helped the Yankees beat the Tigers, 10 to 4.

Red Blankenship won his sixth straight game for the White Sox when he beat the Red Sox 10 to 0.

After winning four games in a row, the Cards were dropped by the Braves, 6 to 4.

The Phillies grabbed three runs in the ninth when Jones weakened and beat the Cubs, 3 to 1.

$1,000,000 IS CHAMP'S TITLE MATCH DEMAND

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
BY LINCOLN QUARBERG

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7.—It will take at least $1,000,000 to get Jack Dempsey into a title bout with Harry Wills, and the first promoter who can guarantee the heavyweight champion on that amount, and Sign Paddy Mullins, the negro challenger's manager, will get the match.

In an exclusive interview today, Dempsey denied that he had signed articles of agreement with Floyd Fitzsimmons to meet Wills at Michigan City and declared the match was still wide open to the promoter who could make the highest bid for his services.

SHORT SPORTS

EAST CHICAGO, Ind.—The well-known championship of the world will be at stake when Mickey Walker and Billy Wells step into the ring here tonight. Both Walker, the present title holder, and his English challenger, dropped heavy training today. Wells must win by a knockout to get the title.

BROCKWAY, Cal.—(Lake Tahoe)—Eleanor Garatti, 18-year-old San Rafael girl, holder of the world's swimming record for 50 yards, set a new record for 100 yards when she swam the distance here in 1 minute, 2-5 seconds.

LOS ANGELES—Having tasted the fruits of victory Wednesday the Angels found it to their liking and turned back the Salt Lake Bees again yesterday by a score of 8 to 2. Charley Root, who will report to the Cubs next spring, allowed the Bees four hits.

Frankie Genaro, the American flyweight champion, who is looked upon as the legitimate successor to the world's title as a result of the death of Pancho Villa, has arrived at the top in just five years from the start of his professional career. Genaro is of Italian-American parentage and will be 24 years old next month.

EAST AND WEST COURT CLASSIC OPENS SEASON

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Tennis begins its grand opera season on the courts of the West Side Tennis club at Forest Hills this afternoon with the opening matches of the annual meeting between the east and the west.

Beginning with the east-west matches, the star players will be engaged almost continuously in major tournaments until mid-September when the men's national championship finishes the season.

What's in a name? Nothing, say some; everything, others say.

However, after glancing up and down the list of headlines in the realm of women's athletics, one finds a single name, at least, that's now playing quite a prominent part along the sportive right of way.

Helen—that's it. And in this era of athletic activities it seems to be a name to conjure with, too.

For instance, there's Helen Wills. She's the present national tennis queen, as you doubtless know. She's a two-time title holder, in fact. And quite likely to make it three triumphs this season.

She won highest honors on the courts at the slender age of 17. Across a two-year span of participation, at that. Her climb to festive heights is a bit out of the ordinary, no matter how you look at it.

Helen Filkey is another. In track and field competition she's a world record holder in two events, the running broad jump and 60-yard low hurdles. She is also joint holder of the quarter-mile relay mark in the fair sex domain. Can step the century in close to record time.

In the first National A. A. U. meet for women held out on the west coast recently, she took down three first places. Her ability as a versatile performer stamps her as a star in the athletic firmament.

Coming up from the rank and file is Helen Jacobs. She's present national tennis girl champion. She's coming to the front rapidly. And is being touted as a possible successor to Helen Wills. Like the latter, she hails from sunny California, where they have a happy habit of turning out stellar net celebrities.

Other Helens, Too

Here are four Helens, all holding places of prominence in active competition. And each an outstanding star in her chosen field.

MEXICO PROVIDES MONEY FOR ROADS

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 7.—According to the newspaper Universal, it has been known by the Mexican ministry of finance that in the exercise of extraordinary financial powers vested in him, President Calles has issued a decree empowering the national highway commission to draw on the national treasury for funds in case taxation from gasoline and other sources to find funds for the construction of roads throughout the republic does not reach $500,000 monthly. That monthly amount is the sum payable by agreement to the Byrne Brothers' Construction company, of Chicago, which holds the contract to construct a road from Mexico City to Laredo, and two shorter highways. Says Captors Are Kind In Treatment

PEKING, Aug. 7.—Dr. Harvey Howard, of the Rockefeller Foundation hospital, in Peking, recently captured by bandits, when they killed Morgan Palmer, American ranch owner in Manchuria, is being treated kindly by his captors, according to a private letter from him.

RUMANIAN TRAVEL FOUND DIFFICULT

BERLIN, Aug. 7.—Rumanian authorities of both the railroads touching Bucharest seem to specialize in making things disagreeable for foreign travelers. Mrs. Junius B. Wood, wife of the staff correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, who recently returned to Berlin from Bucharest, gave a surprising account of the exasperating experiences to which all foreigners unable to speak the Rumanian tongue are subjected. Although travel agencies promise sleeping cars, these are rarely found on the railroads. The conductors absolutely prohibit passengers from occupying more than one seat for sleeping purposes, even when seats are otherwise unoccupied. Mrs. Wood was rudely awakened at 2 o'clock in the morning by a conductor, who compelled her to remain sitting all night. Leaving Bucharest, she was arrested at the frontier because she did not possess a visa, which she had been told by the authorities was not necessary. She escaped in time to retake her train only by paying about $15. Later, arriving in Czechoslovakia, she was persecuted by the conductor, who demanded money for his "valuable services in having her released." Similar complaints are common and it would seem that the Rumanians still are careless whether foreigners, traveling in Europe, prefer to remain outside their borders. Bobby Johnston To 'Ref' Shade, Schoell Battle

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—Bobby Johnston, former featherweight boxer and referee of the recent McLarnin-Villa fight, will be third man in the ring when Frankie Schoell and Dave Shadde meet here tomorrow night. Johnston was suggested by Shade's father during yesterday's conference and was accepted by Bert Finch, Schoell's manager, after representatives of the two fighters had been deadlocked for nearly an hour yesterday.

Famine Condition Becomes Serious

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Reports received here from competent sources in Peking state that the condition of the Chinese in Szechwan and Kweichow provinces, due to famine conditions, is becoming desperate. The Bishop of Kweichow writes: "The rice plants are drying up for want of labor. The peasants are dying of hunger and incapable of work. Prices of commodities rise daily, and in many parts no supplies are to be found. The inhabitants are eating grass and the bark of trees. The situation truly is frightful and disquieting."

NORWALK TIRES are best grade. At Gerwing's, 312 Broadway.

STEINMETZ GIVEN 'STROKE' CREDIT

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—"No particular credit is due me. The guiding hand of Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz will be responsible for the gift of the 'death stroke' to the world," Dr. Edwin R. Scott, inventor, told the United Press.

"Why, I feel as though he would rise from the grave if I allowed the doubters and scoffers to reflect upon his part in this," Scott declared.

The inventor turned from mention of the man-made lightning, which he will demonstrate next month for the navy department in mid-Pacific, to an endorsement of the American Chemical society's efforts to find gasoline substitutes.

"My gasoline substitute, now in the hands of the government, can be sold profitably at eight cents a gallon. The oil men and those using gasoline are living in a fool's paradise. Wait until 1935 and see how much gasoline there is left. The hundred per cent chemists are the salvation of the country and hold the key to life in future generations."

Dr. Scott asserted he expects a definite and positive move by the German government, soon to secure his "death stroke."

"They knew Steinmetz and will do their utmost to follow anything he had a hand in," the inventor said. "I worked with Steinmetz from 1898 to 1921 in his laboratory and through correspondence. I feel I am only carrying on his work."

Japan Suspicious Of Naval Practice

TOKIO, Aug. 7.—Reassuring statements from Washington and London have by no means satisfied Japanese public opinion that American naval maneuvers in the Pacific are not in the nature of a military gesture by the United States.

Japan still feels keenly the humiliation she suffered through the immigration law and many observers see in the naval maneuvers a silent demonstration by the Washington government that it is able to back up its stand on immigration by force, if necessary.

Holding of the naval maneuvers "not long after the anti-Japanese immigration law by congress was extremely unfortunate," says the Osaka Mainichi, one of the most powerful of Japanese dailies.

"It was on so large a scale as to invite suspicion," the newspaper asserts, and cannot but be regarded in this country as a "brazen attempt to study naval warfare with Japan as an imaginary enemy."

The journal answers arguments forward in justification of the maneuvers by American and British publicists by asserting that these "do not touch the fundamentals of the question of peace." It points out that Sir Herbert Russell is one British naval critic who admits the real reason for the tests in his statement that "the fleet is too large for visiting other powers (Australia) merely for the purpose of international courtesy."

Reports Seeing California Bear, Thought Extinct

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—Evidence that the California grizzly bear may not be extinct, as believed, has been received here by the California Academy of Sciences.

Col. John R. White, superintendent of Sequoia National park, reported he had seen a large grizzly, of the California type, in Giant forest.

Destruction of the California grizzly began with the gold rush, when the miners went after the bear with fear in their hearts. One of the last known survivors of the species died here in captivity in 1911.

Typifying strength and intelligence, the bear was put on the state flag in 1847, when Mexican domination of California was broken, but the people did not have the foresight to protect it from destruction.

Dr. Barto. Warren Evermann, director of the natural history museum here, said there probably are not more than 600 grizzlies of all types left in North America.

Declares Movies Distort History

LONDON, Aug. 7.—American history—contemporary and past—as imparted to British youth through U. S. films is giving Britain "an unwholesome and distorted viewpoint."

This at any rate is the conclusion reached by Prof. S. E. Morrison, the retiring Harmsworth professor of American history at Oxford university.

Delivering an address on "The Study of American History in England," before the Anglo-American History conference, Professor Morrison declared: "So far as I know there are only three English schools where the history of the United States is taught. On the other hand English history has been taught to three generations of Americans in thousands of their schools and colleges, and it has done much to dissipate old prejudices."

"Here, however, the British youths get their ideas of America largely from the motion pictures and these American films mostly present a distorted view of American life."

For the United States for which they are primarily intended as a romantic compensation for the humdrum life of Main street. But their effect here, where the background is different, is, I believe unwholesome."

Will Make London Tour Prices Lower

LONDON, Aug. 7.—"Seeing London" is to be made cheaper for American tourists.

The tramway lines here corresponding to the electric street railway lines in an American city, are shortly to issue "one day passes," good over any or all of their lines without restriction as to the distance traveled. The price of the passes will be one shilling, approximately 25 cents.

That will give the tourist, all for the price of a shilling, a 12 1/2-mile trip from the Thames embankment, in the heart of London, out to Abbey Wood; a 10-mile run to Wimbledon, and a 9-mile run from Bloomsbury to Epping Forest.

If he isn't all fagged out by the time he has made these three runs, there are several shorter ones he may choose in addition, or do the first three all over again, still all for a shilling.

Proposes to Open Imperial Palace

PEKING, Aug. 7.—Henry Pu Yi, erstwhile Manchou emperor before his forced abdication last autumn, desires to help laborers throughout China who are on strike against British and Japanese oppression. He has accordingly made known his desire that the summer palace of imperial days, west of Peking, be thrown open to the public for three weeks at a small admission charge, and that all proceeds be devoted to strike funds.

Chinese Students Destroy Tobaccos

PEKING, Aug. 7.—Despite representations that unoffending and friendly American interests are being harmed by their activities, anti-British Chinese students have been busily destroying products of the British-American Tobacco company, wherever they could do so with impunity.

Bands of roving students have wrecked many small Chinese shops handling such products, and in other cases they have cast alleged British cigarettes and tobaccos into the street.

Almost all the tobacco used in the manufacture of these cigarettes comes from Virginia and it is believed the American growers will be the eventual sufferers.

WILL RESUME CAMPAIGN TO BAR EVOLUTION

By MAYNARD SHIPLEY
(President of Science League of America.)

(Written for the United Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—The lull in the evolution war caused by the death of William Jennings Bryan, fundamentalist prophet, was not that of peace, but the calm that comes before the storm.

In California, the fight for an anti-evolution teaching law has actually started. It will come into the open within a few days with petitions for an initiative measure to be placed before the voters at the next election. Fundamentalist leaders have carefully laid their plans in Los Angeles and San Francisco, spreading through organized church circles into the smaller cities and towns for a campaign to secure signatures to the petitions.

Pick Two Leaders
To take the place of Bryan, the ardent fundamentalists have picked two men, the Rev. John R. Straton, of New York City, as eastern leader, and the Rev. William Bell Riley, First Baptist church, Minneapolis, as western leader.

If evolutionists had cause to fear the power of Bryan's name and his "silver tongue," they have more cause to fear Riley, for he is not only eloquent and magnetic, but he has a genius for organization and leadership.

The program will follow the course of the 18th amendment campaign. In all states possible, anti-evolution laws will be passed. Senator Blanton and Congressman Upshaw, of Georgia, have agreed to introduce an amendment to the federal constitution.

The Rev. Mr. Riley, it is understood, will campaign in California, Oregon, Washington and in the Scandinavian strongholds of the northern midwest. In the south T. T. Secretary, of the Memphis Anti-Evolution society and editor of "The Conflict," will head the fundamentalist organization. In the southwest, the Rev. J. Frank Norris, Dallas, who boasts of the scalps of seven professors ousted for teaching evolution in his ball-wick, will be in charge.

Will Employ Radio
The Bible Institute, Los Angeles, is the fountainhead of the campaign in this state. Anti-Saloon League methods will be used, supplemented by a radio broadcasting station, already controlled at this source.

Petitions are ready for circulation in San Francisco. The Science League will combat the fundamentalists here as elsewhere, by a campaign of education—protest meetings, speakers in every city and hamlet, and publicity as to what evolution really is.

Politeness May Replace Traffic Cop's Commands

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Alphonso and Gaston politeness instead of the shrill whistle of a traffic cop, that sends chills down a motorist's spine, may soon become a universal regulation for automobile driving.

A "code of motor ethics," asking drivers to follow the Golden Rule—Do unto others as you would have others do unto you—is now being prepared by the American Automobile association. A book on automobile etiquette may eventually be adopted with the rules as follows:

1—Horn signals must be sounded to indicate turns, passing machines, stops and for warning pedestrians.

2—Passing another car on the brow of a hill, on a curve, or where a view of the road is obstructed, will be a breach of etiquette.

3—Hogging the road will be bad manners.

4—Crowding close to the rear of the car in front will be impolite.

5—Stepping on the gas when another machine is about to pass in the same direction will be an act of insolence.

Clergyman Draws 120 Days In Jail

OAKLAND, Aug. 7.—The Rev. Horace B. Patterson, of Lodi, was sentenced to serve 120 days in jail following his conviction yesterday on a charge of petty larceny.

The clergyman was arrested on the complaint of August Hinkle, Oakland, who charged that Patterson made him post a note for $100 on the promise of employment as a mine manager. He then was refused both the money and the job, Hinkle charged. Motion for a new trial was denied and notice of an appeal was given.

Tear Gas Guards Whiskey Supply

KITTANING, Pa., Aug. 7.—Tear gas, little used since the war, has now found a new job—that of protecting whiskey.

The government's big distillery in Schenley, near here, is now installed with tear gas containers placed near the entrances so that persons tampering with the doors will immediately be engulfed with the fumes and thus forced to flee. Officials say the tear gas will fight robbers more effectively than sprinklers fight fires.

SAYS ZEPPELIN IS ONLY MEANS TO REACH POLE

BERLIN, Aug. 7.—"The exploration of the north pole will be made with a Zeppelin or it will not be made at all."

This is the considered opinion of Dr. Hugo Eckener, the famous commander of the "Los Angeles," then the "ZR-3," on her transatlantic flight.

If the council of ambassadors grants Germany the permission to build another Zeppelin for scientific research, then by the spring of 1927 the world will know what is to be known about the north pole. The geographic problems regarding the distribution of land and water in the arctic regions, problems of magnetism, of the atmosphere of high sea currents and of electricity, all will be solved by the expedition to be launched with the new airship under Dr. Eckener's command and with Fritz Nansen leading the staff of scientists on board.

Preparations Made.

In an interview with the United Press, Dr. Eckener explained the preparations he has already made for the aerostatic part of the expedition. The Zeppelin company contemplated such an expedition before the war, and Count Zeppelin went to Spitzbergen to study the possibilities of anchoring and the air currents.

The plans for the new airship are ready, and foresee a ship of 110,000 cubic metres, the capacity of one-and-one-half times the capacity of the Los Angeles. Otherwise the ship will be of the same type as the Los Angeles, like her carry five motors of 2000 horsepower. Owing to its large dimensions, it is reckoned that the new ship will make between 75 and 85 miles an hour.

A certain difficulty confronts us in securing the necessary outfit to navigate the ship near the pole. The cold is not, as the layman might think, the chief obstacle. In spring and summer the temperature in the polar region is not as cold as the public thinks, and especially at a certain altitude it is generally above the freezing point.

Besides, as Dr. Eckener pointed out, during the war the Zeppelins, flying very high sometimes encountered a temperature of 9 degrees below zero, and nevertheless the motors worked very well. The cold merely necessitates adding alcohol to the water for the motors.

Magnetic Pole.

The difficulty in navigating the ship arises from the special conditions of the polar region, that is from the magnetic pole. The compass is of no use, and it needs a complicated system of gauging to determine the position of the ship. Even the wireless set is influenced by these conditions. Dr. Eckener, nevertheless, is confident that he will be able to guide the ship wherever he wishes.

Another point to be considered is the possibility of landing. Measures will be taken to enable the ship to descend on the surface of the water and to anchor. Should no open water of sufficient dimensions be found, the touring of the pole will be made without landing. A landing other than on water would be very difficult, because no crew is available to tow the ship down and fasten it to an anchor mast.

The ship must be larger than the Los Angeles to carry the large scientific staff. It will be remembered that on the transatlantic flight the ZR-3 could not take another passenger because she needed all her carrying power for the 30 tons of fuel. A similar airship would be able to carry another 4 tons, if it started its flight from a place at sea level and not, as did the ZR-3, from a place 400 meters above the sea. If the Los Angeles would attempt a north pole expedition, she would have to use hydrogen because, filled with helium, she carries 9 tons less. But for safety a bigger airship would always be required.

Crew Large Enough.

Dr. Eckener has sufficient trained men in Friedrichshafen to make up his crew, which will amount to some 30 men. The scientific members will be limited to 20 and include several German and some international experts. Dr. Eckener has already wired to Amundsen reminding him of previous discussions about reaching the pole in an airship, and he hopes that Amundsen and Ellsworth will join Nansen for the two trips which are now considered.

Contrary to Amundsen's last expedition, this new one will not mean the physical strain he just underwent. The scientists will have to work assiduously, but to use Dr. Eckener's words, they will live near the pole, as if they stayed in a dining-car or a sleeping compartment.

Musical Motors
London's Latest

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The musical motor car has made its appearance in London.

An ingenious motorist has affixed a series of organ pipes to the side of his car. These he operates from a pipe connected to the exhaust.

By the side of the steering wheel is a set of organ keys and he adds to the variety of sound around London and the surrounding countryside by picking out tuneful airs in keeping with the mood of the moment.

Ford Would Buy
Sea-Going Tugs

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Henry Ford has bid $40,000 each for seven 150-foot ocean-going tugs now held by the shipping board.

The board declined to accept the offer, but stated that Ford could have the boats for $42,500 and it is understood that this figure might be accepted.

Communists In Sweden Attack Capital States

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 7.—Swedish Communist leaders, under the direction of Moscow, have published a flaming appeal against capital states in general, and England in particular, charging them with organizing a new war against Russia.

The real importance of this is the proof it affords that the Komintern is reviving open world agitation.

The manifesto declares an English-American-Japanese fight now is in progress over China, and that it is sure to lead to war. The proletariat, says the manifesto, must use every means in its power to support China's working masses.

The document adds that the Baltic stages are concerning plans, under England's supervision, for an attack upon Russia. Both the Little Entente and the Great Entente are supposed to be conspiring at Bucharest, London and Paris.

OCEAN COLLEGE TO MAKE TOUR AROUND WORLD

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—With the deck of an 18,000-ton ship for a campus, cabins for dormitories and lounges for classrooms, 450 American college boys will sail from New York for a year's course in New York university's "Around the World College." Prof. James E. Lough, dean of the extra-mural division, is in charge of the venture, which will start on September 25.

Although educational tours have become well known features of American travel, no attempt has been made before this to organize a college on board ship, according to the current issue of the New York University Alumni magazine. For 240 days the floating college will cruise, visiting five continents, 35 countries and 50 ports.

Santiago First Stop

The ship will put into Santiago first and the students will spend a few days in Cuba. From there they will go through the Panama canal on the way to Hawaii. In the Orient they will visit the Philippines, Japan, Korea, Borneo and Java, the Malay Peninsula, Sumatra, Burma, India, Ceylon, Arabia and Egypt. In the near east some time will be spent in Palestine and Turkey. The itinerary includes one week in Greece and a week in Africa. All the well known points of Europe are included in the trip. Two weeks will be spent in Italy, England, France and Germany.

Courses of college grade in subjects suitable for study while on a cruise, will be given by the faculty chosen from leading American colleges and universities which are co-operating with New York university in the new plan. Students will be expected to enroll for courses equivalent to one year's work and must consult authorities in their own colleges for approval of their program before they will be accepted for the tour.

Applicants Sought

The cruise will be open to graduate and undergraduate students. A group of students representative of all parts of the United States will be selected from all the applicants.

The curriculum will include subjects which can be taught better through what might be called a field course than in a college classroom. Classes will be given in foreign languages and for this purpose special tables in the saloon will be reserved for student groups interested in languages.

Faculty and students will come in close contact, not only in the classroom but also on the shore trips. Field work and conferences will form an important part of the student course. Contacts will be established with foreign educational institutions and in many places the students will be officially received by government representatives.

Dr. Charles F. Thwing, president of the Western Reserve university, has been chosen president of the "Around the World college." Dr. Thwing retired as head of Western Reserve university in 1921. Since then he has devoted himself to travel and writing.

Thieves Disrupt
Sales In Church

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Thieving at church rummage sales is on the increase in England.

At least, complains the Rev. H. W. Weatherhead, vicar of St. Mary's church, at Isleworth, near London.

To make matters worse the women don't content themselves with the illicit "lifting" of a single small item.

"They come with large bags and pillow cases," declared the Rev. Mr. Weatherhead in describing what happened at the latest sale his church has held.

"Articles big and small they jammed into their bags in wholesale fashion. In the future something will have to be done for our protection; either we will have to erect strong barriers or keep out hefty women carrying bags."

"Dealers' is another class of persons we will have to exclude also. Either that, or they must be charged three times as much as anyone else."

The Health Value of Radioactivity

Radio-Activity Is Now Recognized by Science as the Reason for the Health Benefits at the World's Greatest Health Springs. It is Nature's Greatest Aid to Health.

Radio-activity works its wonders because its presence permits water to eliminate poisons from the body. The burden of bodily poisons is one of the greatest handicaps of health and just as the radio-active health springs of Hot Springs, Arkansas, Baden, Germany, Vichy, France, etc., drives these poisons from the system, so does the water from the Revigator—the principle is exactly alike—the results are equally apparent.

The Revigator creates perfect water—flavorless, odorless, but abundant with radio-activity, the natural cleansing element of water. The Revigator is guaranteed to restore to any water its lost radio-activity, at least equaling the average contained in the greatest health springs in the world. The Revigator has been tested by the United States Government and other great scientific authorities throughout the world. The thousands of Revigators now in use make eloquent proof of its marvelous value for the sick and the well.

THE REVIGATOR MEANS BETTER HEALTH, ALWAYS HAVE IT IN YOUR HOME.

In comparison with this small annual cost of doing a large washing $ 28.45

Look at the annual cost of having this work done outside at a charge of 5c per pound 130.00

Even a small washing of only 20 pounds done outside, at 5c per pound, would cost 52.00

But, think of the pleasure of personal supervision a woman may have when her most cherished possession, her clothes, are washed in a Maytag!

Compare the SAFETY of private personal washing in one's own Maytag, with the danger of disease and contagion when one's clothes are mixed and come in contact with the unknown outside.

The satisfaction of having your work done the way you like it done, and whenever you want it done, is worth something to you.

Think of the restful assurance of safety in washing in your own Maytag your most delicate fabrics—dainty things you would never think of trusting outside.

You will enjoy the same pleasure and satisfaction and independence in OWNING A MAYTAG that one feels in driving his own car instead of using the street car or taxi-cab.

The evidence is overwhelming.

Probe Migratory Actions of Fish

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Some kinds of deep sea fish spend their careers in the same section of the ocean, resisting entirely the urge to migrate which takes schools of their fellows great distances. Since 1913, the bureau of fisheries has tagged 25,000 cod, had dock and pollock, with a cerise colored band. Over 650 have been recaptured in the same area in which they were tagged and none have been caught a distance away. The bureau will now investigate the mackerel in an effort to discover if migratory habits explain the periodic scarcity and abundance of that fish.

60 ADHERENTS OF EMPIRE IN RUSSIA KILLED

By F. A. MACKENZIE. (Special Cable)

RIGA, Aug. 7.—Correspondents of the writer in Russia report two recent developments of considerable economic importance, but also report a serious increase of terroristic methods of class war developed by the Communists. The government's recent modifications of its economic policy and renewed encouragement of private trade are having marked effect. In many cities, considerable much-needed housing reform is under way.

White-washing in Moscow. Leningrad has taken immense strides forward since the inundation last autumn. Moscow is enjoying an orgy of repainting and whitewashing. The introduction of taxicabs has quickened Moscow life. The people look better dressed and more prosperous than six months ago.

Zinoviev, as the writer anticipated, still continues to exercise considerable power, though he is blamed for the two recent mass executions at Leningrad, when nearly 60 old members of the Imperial Alexandrovsky Lyceum were arrested and slain, following a very foolish speech in Paris by the former Russian czarist minister of finance. This minister boasted in Paris that whites there were receiving news concerning Russian internal conditions through old pupils of this Lyceum. The Bolsheviks retorted by wholesale arrests and executions. Among the victims were Prince Galitzin, the last czarist premier, who recently had earned his living as a shoemaker.

Arrest 1000 in Moscow. Arrests at Moscow some weeks ago numbered 1000, the Bolshevik leaders making no secret of the fact that, while not seriously fearing any rising, they intended to break up and scatter the old intelligentsia and aristocrats who were even passively unsympathetic with the new regime.

Older residents of Leningrad are covering under the recent threats of arrests and execution. Stalin and Dzjerzinsky now share supreme influence. Kamliev's authority is declining. Chicherin has little influence over the general policy. Zinoviev holds stubbornly on. Trotzky has sunk to quite the second rank. The main power is the political police, the G. P. U., which today is stronger and more absolute than ever. (Copyright, 1925, by Chicago Daily News company.)

Will Build Guard Rails On Curves

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 7.—With a view of preventing further serious accidents on the Sky Line boulevard in San Francisco, the state highway commission has adopted a plan for the construction of two miles of guard rail at various points along the road. The railing will be placed on dangerous curves between Sloat boulevard and the King Mountain road, in San Mateo county. The bids will be opened in Sacramento August 24 and the work will be financed with gasoline tax money.

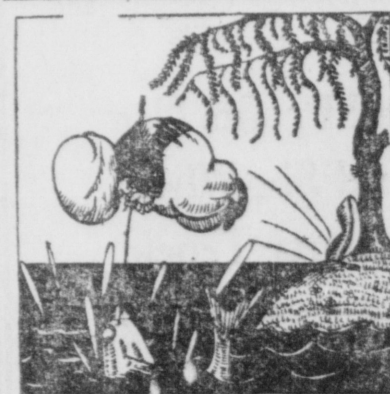

In the past, the miners have not been greatly averse to a week or so of idleness in the Pennsylvania hills during the finest period of the year. It has only been when merchants began to shut off credit and when the savings accounts began to be depleted that pressure has been felt.

A suspension of work in the anthracite fields directly affects only a certain section, but it would have a direct effect on the soft coal situation and through this on every business man, worker and householder.

WILL NOT TAX
BEER TO MEET
COAL SUBSIDY

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The proposal to pay the coal subsidy by a tax of a penny a pint on beer is not seriously entertained here, but it provides an interesting example of the mysterious ways in which the British press works, its wondrous to perform.

A restive spirit has been shown even in staunch Conservative quarters ever since Prime Minister Baldwin's announcement last Friday that the government will prevent a coal strike by subsidizing the mine owners for nine months. In a manner of speaking, Mr. Baldwin gave the owners a blank check to cover losses the size of which nobody knows. And nobody knows where the money will come from.

Resent Baldwin's Surrender

Certain elements of the Tory press are particularly resentful of the government's "surrender to red threats" and have launched a bitter campaign to defeat the agreement, embarrass the government and delay a settlement. On Tuesday afternoon, each afternoon paper—the Star, the Evening News and the Standard—carried at about the same time a sensational story, asserting on "good authority" that the government would make up the coal subsidy by taxing beer.

Such a suggestion is obviously ridiculous, because it would alienate a million workers, who traditionally regard their beer as more sacred by a long shot than their votes. Nevertheless, each paper, in its early editions, played the story hard, but cautiously refrained from giving the source of the "good authority" except vaguely to mention "a press association."

The story was practically identical in the three papers, in itself a strange incident. But the wonder increased tenfold when it was discovered that later editions of the three papers, one and all, dropped the story completely. Further amazement came when the morning papers referred to the story with disapproving scorn—though in each case the afternoon paper is but an afternoon edition of a morning paper—the Evening News of the Mail, the Star of the Daily News, and the Standard of the Express.

Such journalistic vaudeville is almost unprecedented and is difficult to account for except on the theory that the papers planned to launch a silly, damaging story together now and then found that it was a complete dud. But it is felt that the episode reveals the extreme bitterness of sentiment which Baldwin has aroused among the rank and file, who will have to pay in taxes all the expenses of the coal industry and the wages of the miners until next May. It also shows the bitterness of the great newspaper magnates against Baldwin personally.

Woodpecker Wins
Battle With Man

DALLAS, Aug. 7.—While the woodpecker always has been regarded as a tough customer in the bird kingdom, it remained for one father woodpecker here successfully to mix it with a telephone lineman.

When the lineman climbed the pole to make repairs, the irate bird flogged him in the face. Brushed away, the bird returned with a swoop, carrying away his hat. Several other well-directed pecks left their marks on the lineman's head.

When the invader clambered down the pole, the woodpecker was perched atop, master of the situation.

HARMONY OBTAINS
THROUGHOUT ERIN

DUBLIN, Aug. 7.—The Royal Dublin society's annual horse show is regarded as a trustworthy barometer of Irish conditions, and the show this week promises to eclipse all records save that attained before the war, when King George visited it.

The horse show was continued even in the most troublesome times and this is the first show in many years which is threatened by no cloud. Its visitors include Vice Admiral Andrews and officers of the U. S. flagship Pittsburgh, now in Irish waters.

That past memories are being obliterated is indicated by guests, who are appearing in the government-general's party. They have included Colonial Secretary Amery and his wife, who is a sister of Sir Hamar Greenwood. This is the first time such a visit has been paid by a British minister since the treaty was signed. There is also Mr. Whiskard, who in the years before the treaty, was sent over by the British to Dublin castle and was its most influential official.

These visits from old opponents suggest a parallel between Ireland and South Africa, where warfare was succeeded by peace within the British commonwealth.

Among others at the show are a party of South African farmers, who are inquiring into Irish agricultural conditions. They have just come from Belfast, where they were full of the success of the visit of the Prince of Wales to South Africa, and where the Lord Mayor expressed the hope that the Prince would visit northern Ireland. This has provoked the query, if Belfast, why not Dublin?

Calumpit Camp

At a regular meeting of Calumpit camp No. 26, Department of California, United Spanish War Veterans, the camp and its auxiliary were honored by distinguished guests. Dr. W. T. Slemmons, past department surgeon, who served four successive terms as department surgeon and as a written-in candidate defeated the regular nominee at the last department encampment, only to have his election challenged by his opponent's campaign manager on a technical point.

Dr. Slemmons visited here on business of the U. S. W. V., but also was paying a visit to some of his old comrades, he having been in service with the 40th U. S. volunteers, of which Company D, of Orange, was a part. Another guest was Della Weeks Moore, who served in the Philippines as an army nurse as a member of the 51st Iowa volunteers, and is now a department aide of the U. S. W. V. auxiliary.

The third visitor was Mrs. Mac-Claire Evans, president of Appomattox circle, Ladies of the G. A. R. of Sawtelle, and a member of the U. S. W. V. auxiliary.

They were here on a visit in behalf of the California Soldiers' Widows' home, at Westgate, and "Comrade" Moore solicited a flag for one of the wards in the soldiers' home hospital. Another patriotic society has supplied them with six flags. Calumpit camp voted to have the patriotic instructor purchase a silk flag for Ward 10 and present it in connection with the Manila day exercises at the home.

The camp and auxiliary each voted to go to Carlsbad to visit Comrade and Mrs. Orffitt on a camping party August 29. Mrs. Orffitt's letter of invitation said they would have a "corn bake" on the beach, two blocks from their home. The visitors will motor to Carlsbad Saturday morning and return Sunday evening.

MEAT FOR HEALTH

Your appetite tells you what you like to eat, but it does not tell you the things you should eat, and the average diet of today does not give you a sufficient quantity of the various food elements necessary to vigorous, good health. Government experts declare, after much research and many tests, that meat supplies all the important elements when balanced with vegetables needed in the human body.

This being true, it is well to select a Seidel market where you are absolutely assured of nothing but fancy, fresh meats bearing the all-important "U. S. Government Inspected and Passed" stamp. Another good reason for patronizing Seidel markets is the modern refrigerating plant to be found in each. SOCIAL AND PERSONAL NEWS OF ORANGE

ORANGE, Aug. 7.—One of the prettiest weddings of the summer took place yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. Bertha Murphy, 512 North Glassell street, when her daughter, Miss Cornelia Murphy, became the bride of Merville Haag, son of Mrs. Stephen A. Edwards, 930 Hickory street, Santa Ana.

As the wedding march was played the bridal couple entered the living room, where they were met by the Rev. C. B. Dalton, pastor of the Methodist church, at a bower composed of beautiful pink amaryllis and ferns. The bridegroom was attended by Miss Loraine Sturbaum and George Slater.

The bride was dressed in a lovely creation of white georgette. She wore a misty veil coronet fashion, caught to her dark hair, with orange blossoms. She carried brides' roses and ferns.

The bridesmaid, Miss Sturbaum, wore a stunning frock of orchid crepe with a picture hat of orchid and carried a bouquet of roses.

Following the impressive single ring marriage service of the Methodist church, a short congratulatory period was held. Refreshments were served to the group of relatives and close friends who witnessed the ceremony.

The bride donned a chic sport suit of Sahara color with harmonizing accessories for her traveling costume.

WORKERS SETTLE STRIKE IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 7.—Members of the radical textile mills employees' unions, displaced at the unsuccessful mediation on the part of the government conciliation and arbitration commission in their difficulties with textile mill owners, took matters into their own hands and successfully negotiated a settlement.

In celebration of the event, the workers replaced with white banners the usual red and black banners which the unions are in the habit of hanging across all entrances to factories against which strikes have been declared, in this way prohibiting entrance to all persons. The white flags are taken as a symbol of peace.

In some circles, importance is attached to this action. It is pointed out that it may go down in Mexican labor history as the first step in a definite change in policy on the part of the workers toward settling future strikes, in that they will be more inclined to negotiate directly with their employers instead of through an arbitration committee.

VOLCK

You can tell VOLCK-sprayed groves by their clean thrifty appearance

You can go into almost any citrus area in California and pick out the VOLCK-sprayed groves by their clean, thrifty, vigorous appearance. They stand out in sharp contrast to the groves where pest control has been attempted with other methods or materials, or where the grower has not attempted to control the pests at all.

The foliage is a deeper, cleaner green. New growth is unusually abundant. The fruit is clean and attractive. And there is a uniformly good setting of the crop.

This effect becomes more pronounced as groves are sprayed with VOLCK thru successive seasons. It is the result, in part at least, of the fact that the trees are allowed to develop free from the devastating effect of the scale, the leaves are cleaned of smut and allowed to function properly, new growth is not burned or retarded, and the trees are allowed to grow and develop unhampered by the pests or by methods used to control the pests.

Every grower knows that clean thrifty trees produce the most and best fruit. And growers are rapidly discovering that VOLCK produces clean thrifty trees. It should be applied now, when the hatch is young and can be most economically controlled.

Husband Won't Return Unless Cops Bring Him

"I'm going. Whenever I come back the officers will bring me back."

Such was the midnight farewell of Nicodemus Lacy, oil company carpenter living at Brea, as he separated from his wife, Stella Lacy, July 31, after a heated quarrel.

A resounding bang of the door and Lacy was gone.

The separation was thus pictured in Mrs. Lacy's suit for divorce on file today in superior court. She didn't send the officers after her husband and he is still away.

He had an ungovernable temper, used vile epithets and once whipped his wife with a towel, she declared. The alleged cruelty of which she complained extended over the last four of their six years of married life, it was stated. They were married at Riverside, Dec. 24, 1919.

Mrs. Lacy asks custody of their son, aged 3, and a "suitable" amount of alimony. Attorneys Walter R. French and George Varnum, of Anaheim, represent her in the court action.

KERNELS

BY THE COLONEL

Scanty bathing apparel must go at Balboa, according to an edict sounded from the office of City Recorder Wilson, of the beach town. The summer is almost over now, and he's getting tired of seeing the bathing beauties walking around with so few clothes.

So a campaign is to be started, according to a story in yesterday's Register, and all the bathing suits that the judge doesn't think are "nice," he is going to take from the offenders and give to a bunch of children in the Masonic camp there.

The judge has a wonderful idea. First, it will give the children bathing suits without any expense to them, and second, it will give bathing beauties an alibi for disposing of their old suits and to buy new and more modern ones.

Seriously speaking, the idea is good, but terribly tardy. It is also discovered that the city ordinance there pertaining to bathing suits is not being enforced. This is just the middle of August, give the authorities a chance! There is at least six weeks of bathing yet to come.

Why doesn't the judge put Orange county on the map by being the first judge to send scantily clad bathers to jail? One Orange county judge won fame by being the first to send speeders to jail. The point is all the same.

A "drunk" was being brought in to jail from the county the other day. Officer Howell had the man in tow. The prisoner at every turn of the road would say, "Chief, Oh, Chief," addressing Howell, but Howell answered him not. This was kept up for miles. Finally the intoxicated one became disgusted at not being answered and retorted: "Well, all right, I won't call you 'chief' any more, I'll just call you 'Howell.'"

Husband In Jail For Beating Her, Wife Asks Decree

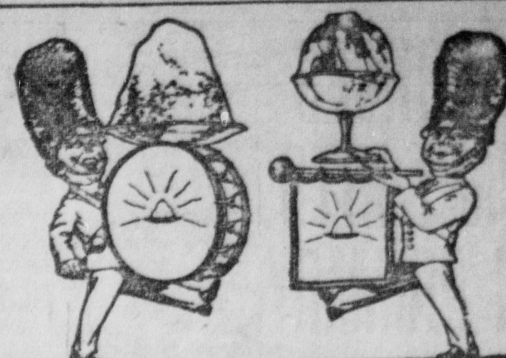

An echo of the recent court hearing of Frank E. Knapp, who was sent to jail for 90 days on a charge of beating his wife, was heard today in superior court with the filing of a divorce complaint by Mrs. Knapp, who resides at 815 North Flower street, Santa Ana.

The wife charges cruelty and recites a series of asserted abuses culminating with the battery incident August 4, when the couple separated. Knapp had previously been fined at Huntington Beach for being drunk, and had threatened to kill his wife, to burn down their house and everyone in it, and to kill himself, she alleged. She asks custody of their two young sons and $50 a month for their support, besides a division of property valued at about $600. Attorney Charles D. Swanner represents her.

HYLAN FORCES TAMMANY TO OPEN PRIMARY

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—State Senator James Walker will be Tammany Hall's candidate for mayor of New York.

After an hour's meeting, the committee of Tammany formally announced that it would support Walker.

This means that Tammany has definitely dropped John F. Hyland, present mayor, as a possible candidate. Hyland had indicated he would seek the Democratic nomination for mayor without Tammany's support in case he were not named by Tammany.

The comptroller, Tammany endorsed Maj. Gen. Charles Whiteberry, of Brooklyn, and for president of the board of aldermen Joseph V. McKee, of the Bronx.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Mayor Hyland has forced Tammany Hall into an open primary fight. This means that Gov. Al Smith will have to take the stump against the mayor in the greater city.

The question is: Can Mayor Hyland stand up against Al Smith in a 30 days' fight? And, if he does, or if he doesn't, what happens to the Democratic party in its Empire state citadel?

Mayor Hyland unquestionably is popular with the people. But Al Smith is adored by these same elements of the population. Mayor Hyland wants a third term. He has had eight years in the city hall and sees no reason for a change now.

Try to Smoke Hyland Out. The politicians have been trying to smoke the mayor out by asking him if he will abide by the result of the Democratic primary or if he will bolt the ticket and run as an independent.

The mayor's adroitly replies that if he is the choice of the majority of the Democrats he will abide by their decision. He adds that he expects to be that choice. He will not admit of any other outcome.

But Tammany believe it can beat Hyland. It believes this because it has received word direct from Al Smith that in its fight, without this open support by the governor, Tammany would not have dared to invite the scrap. With Al Smith in a whirlwind fight, in a cloud of dust and in a blaze of fire, Tammany does not believe anybody can stand against such an assault.

The campaign, apart from its national effect upon the chances of the Democratic party, will be one of the most picturesque ever waged in any American city.

In the first place, New York is the one large city in the United States where a heightened populace still may take a traction ride for a nickel. In other cities the fare rises to seven, eight and 10 cents. Here the nickel still is supreme and on one subway route you can ride 26 miles for five cents. This is the cheapest transportation ever known to the world.

Mayor Hyland every moment of the day and the night advertises that he alone is responsible for maintaining this fare. He says that the moment he goes out of the city hall the "traction thieves" from Wall street will take possession and immediately will boost the fares from one end of the city to the other.

The mayor's opponents try to point out that the city builds and owns the subways and that the revenue which falls to come in from the low fares has to be made up in taxation of the people as a whole. The mayor's opponents point to the fact that the street car lines of the city are in the hands of private owners and have been for several years. The mayor says that was due to bad management and "the looting" of the traction thieves.

The people believe the mayor. The people have to ride to work every day. The people have no limousines. Therefore, the people are for the mayor. They can understand his "issue" and they do not care if he is characterized as a "figure-head" and a "puppet," responding to strings pulled by other hands.

Here's Where Trouble Comes. The same common people who believe so thoroughly in Mayor Hyland have who amounts to almost a personal affection for Al Smith. Therefore, if the governor takes the stump against the mayor, and he says most assuredly that he will, what are people to say or do?

How can Mayor Hyland explain away the opposition of Governor Smith? He will not dare to denounce "Al" of the east side, as a "traction thief" or as a "tool of Wall street." If he attempts anything like that somebody will heave a brick.

If Nemesis overtakes the mayor and blocks his ambition to make the New York mayoralty a perpetual "Mayor Hyland's mayoralty," his name will be "Al" Smith. It will be a knock-down and drag-out donnybrook affair, worth coming miles to see and hear. What will be left when the dust clears away, nobody can say, but the wise guys of Manhattan are winking their eyes and advising their friends to have a little bet down on Al.

Here's Latest for Our Mail Carriers

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 7.—Perhaps the world's oddest mail carrier is the man who plies between the islands of Bogoe and Faroe. He must make his trip on stilts as the water between the two places is too shallow for boats generally but too deep for ordinary shoes.

New Jersey Will Fight to Retain U. S. Dirigibles

ASBURY PARK, Aug. 7.—New Jersey is not going to give up the navy dirigible Shenandoah and Los Angeles without a struggle. The argument that California weather conditions are ideal for dirigible work is "a lot of bunk," declared Thomas H. Pratt, president of the local Rotary club. The club will protest the proposed plan to transfer the dirigible base from Lakeland to California.

"It looks like California boosters have been trying to get our ships out there," Pratt said. "Anyway it is foolish to hamper the navy by this weather argument."

COOLIDGE IS HOPEFUL OF NO MINE WALKOUT

By DAVID LAWRENCE (Copyright, 1925)

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 7.—While President Coolidge still expresses the hope that there will be no mine strike, it was officially stated that no definite plan of government action has been worked out in the event there is a stoppage of coal mining. The president has been advised from all sides that intervention at this time would serve no useful purpose and that, if he can influence the situation at all, it will be after the strike has been called by the full force of public opinion can be brought to bear on the situation.

Would Force Price Up. Two things, however, appear on the horizon as significant. One is that both miners and operators are not at all displeased over the prospect of a strike because it means getting rid of an existing surplus supply. This will cause the price of coal to rise so that the operators will be willing to pay wage increases to get production because they may be able to make more money in a few months of high prices than they have in the past year.

The other is that the government at the moment feels helpless to prevent the combination of circumstances whereby the public foots the bill. There is reason to believe that the president has cautioned the attorney general to be on the alert for any evidence that might make it possible for the government to prosecute anyone who may be guilty of conspiring with anyone else in restraint of trade. Indictments of this kind have been sought in the past, but after a long period of time have been quashed. As a rule the government has not had very positive evidence to support its contention, even though it has been convinced that what amounts to a conspiracy has existed.

What U. S. Must Prove. If the miners and operators naturally come to a disagreement and the effect of it is to raise prices, the government must prove that the two parties deliberately maneuvered in restraint of property when there is an over-supply is not common to the coal business, but exists in other industries too, and it is usually not necessary to enter into any understanding with the employees to get rid of a surplus, as the simple process is to stop production by laying off the workers. In this case, however, coal is an article of such widespread use and its prices react so immediately on the public, that there has been hesitation to force prices upward by normal means. Both the operators and miners will deny vehemently that they have any idea of playing a game on the consuming public. But it is a serious thing that government officials privately revert to that idea constantly and from this it may be inferred that the department of justice is investigating the theory to determine whether some violation of the Sherman anti-trust law is not involved.

The department of justice lately has been active in prosecuting trade organizations of various kinds for alleged concert of action in fixing prices. It is virtually the only weapon at the disposal of the federal government in the present situation but at best it is one that does not terrify either operators or miners, as indictments for similar offenses in the past never have been seriously pressed by the government under republican or democratic administrations. It has, however, been used as leverage in forcing an agreement and in preventing the public from being victimized by unrestricted warfare between miners and operators.

Mark Royal Cars With Blue Lights

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The appearance of a large automobile with a powerful blue light on the front of the canopy over the driver's seat has puzzled American tourists—and for that matter many Londoners—during their jaunts in the West End. It is one of two cars used by King George and Queen Mary, and the blue light has solved a problem that puzzled the police authorities for some time.

When the king and queen were returning from a function at night their car was often held up in the traffic. So the blue light was fixed to two of the automobiles.

Whenever one appears, no matter what time of the night, it is given right of way, other traffic being held up.

A queer cargo arriving in Philadelphia from a royal consignment consisted of a shipment of hard molasses packed in baskets, for use in the manufacture of alcohol.

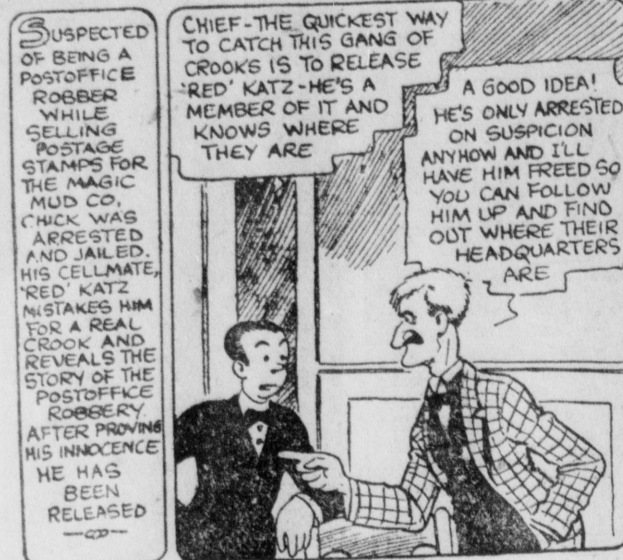

During 1924 more than 100,000 teas were served for members of the British parliament. Luncheons and dinners numbered only 75,000.

L. A. CHILDREN SPEND DAY ON SAND AT BEACH

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 7.—Children from the poorer districts of Los Angeles were given a treat here yesterday. Under the direction of Fathers and Sisters of the St. Joseph Catholic church of Los Angeles, 232 boys and girls were brought to this city for a day on the sand.

The boys and girls, mostly of Mexican parentage, were all members of the Confraternity of the Christian doctrine, a Sunday school class of the church.

Games on the sand, races and other forms of amusement were enjoyed by the children throughout the day. The problem of feeding the 200 young appetites was a serious matter and kept merchants on the pike busy for several hours. A special Pacific Electric train brought the group here from Los Angeles.

Closed Tents Are Target Of Land Company

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 7.—Charging that the city had failed to hold to the agreement which they made with his company, J. S. Lawshe, manager of the Huntington Beach company, was in this city yesterday for a conference with city officials in regard to the passing of an ordinance prohibiting closed tents on the beach.

Lawshe declared that the city had agreed with him to pass an ordinance prohibiting tents on the beach when the contract was drawn for the municipal camp ground. The Huntington Beach company property. The company has leased the camp ground to the city for $1 per year, according to Lawshe, and made the agreement with the understanding that the city would pass an ordinance prohibiting the tents as soon as the camp was finished. Now, he declared, the city trustees refuse to act.

That he is not working against the city but really is working for the best interests of the city, was also declared by Lawshe yesterday. He stated that the only reason his company asked for the city to keep closed tents off the beach was for sanitary purposes. He also stated that people camping on the beach were a source of annoyance to property owners along the ocean front.

"We want the people to use the beach, but we want it to be used by all the people and not spoiled by a favored few who can come in and put up their tents and leave the beach dirty and filthy," Lawshe declared. He further stated that his company had not threatened to close the beach but had merely called the attention of the city trustees to the fact that they could do such a thing, in their request for the ordinance.

Lawshe also explained his stand on the matter of moving the band stand. He said that his main object in asking that the band stand be removed was to locate amusements in its place, which would make the beach more attractive to

Women of W. B. A. Give Card Party At I. O. O. F. Hall

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 7.—A large attendance greeted the Women's Benefit association card party which was given at the Odd Fellows' hall Wednesday evening. Nearly 50 people were present to enjoy the games. The first prizes were awarded to Mrs. Mike Adams for the women, and to Mike Adams for the men. Mrs. Ivan C. Warner was given the consolation for the women and F. O. Brott for the men. Following the card party light refreshments were served.

TWO OIL RIGS GO UP AT H. B. DURING MONTH

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 7.—The erection of two oil derricks this month has swelled building totals here, it was announced today. One of the rigs is being built at 1807 Park street in the northeastern section of the field. The well will be drilled by the Richmond oil company. The cost of the derrick will be about $4500. The other oil rig is located in the same section of the town slightly closer to the main part of the city, at the corner of Thirtieth and Park streets. It will be drilled by W. A. and F. W. Wing. The derrick will cost about $2000. Construction work has already started.

One other permit this month was issued to James Macklin for the addition of a battery room in a garage at the corner of Ocean avenue and Third street. The addition will cost $200.

Relief Corps to Give Lunch for G. A. R. Veterans

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 10.—Members of the Grand Army of the Republic will be the guests of honor of the Woman's Relief Corps at an all day meeting and luncheon beneath the pier here Tuesday.

The women of the organization will serve coffee and will be in charge of the program. Mrs. Minnie Higgins, president of the local Relief Corps, is the general chairman of the affair.

"The main trouble is that the Huntington Beach company has been too generous and lenient with the public and the people have come to think that what is the company's is theirs," Lawshe declared.

Although several compromise measures were suggested at the session, no conclusion was reached, and it is possible that the matter may be decided by the people at a bond election. One bond election to purchase ocean frontage was defeated several months ago.

FEW FIRES IN BEACH TOWN IN EIGHT MONTHS

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 7.—Fires have been few and far between here this year, it was revealed today by Fire Chief Jack Tinsley.

During the eight months since the first of the year there has only been six calls to the fire department. Of these two have been out of the city limits. Not more than $2000 damage has been done in the city during the year by fire, it was revealed by the records of the department.

Considerable credit has been given the recent fire prevention campaign for the small number of fires this year. Volunteer firemen, with the assistance of members of the American Legion, distributed posters and painted huge red feet on the sidewalks of the town. Signs told of the dangers from fire.

The first fire of the year was Jan. 12 when a downtown business building burned. About $1000 damage was done before the blaze was extinguished. An oil derrick at the city limits of the town burned February 1 with a loss of $8500. No fire calls were received in March. A small frame house burned April 15 with a loss of $1000 and since that time no damage has been done in the town. Three other calls were reported, however, one to Newport Beach where a large apartment house was destroyed by flames. Another call was received which took firemen to the section house of the Southern Pacific Electric railroad, when steam pipes became too hot. The last call was received July 19 when an automobile caught on fire. The car was extinguished before the department arrived.

Members of the Legion post have been assisting the Woman's Auxiliary of the Legion secure discarded clothing for soldiers at Camp Kearney.

German Plane Line In Holland Disturbs Dutch

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 7.—The newly-founded Air Navigation company, which is operating a daily service between Amsterdam, Eindhoven and Berlin, is meeting with strong criticism here. It appears that the company is a camouflaged German enterprise, carrying the Dutch flag.

The company was founded with a working capital of 300,000 florins by the well known Junker Airplane company, which is partly subsidized by the German government. The planes used are all of Junker manufacture and are flown by German pilots. The Royal Dutch Air Navigation company refuses to recognize the new company, which, moreover, has been boycotted by the traveling public.

Amsterdam, which actually is the second air harbor in the world, is not at all opposed to the open door policy. Five foreign companies already are flying in Dutch territory. But Dutch opinion is against the establishment in Holland of a German air line, which is trying to carry out a program here which for political and economic reasons it cannot carry out under the German flag—a deception which in case of war might have fatal consequences.

2 cups brown sugar.
2 cups butter-milk.
1/2 cup lard.
4 cups flour.
2 tsp. jam.
1 cup nuts.
1 pound raisins.
2 tsp. soda.
2 tsp. cinnamon.
1/2 tsp. cloves.
1 tsp. nutmeg.
2 tsp. cocoa.
Pinch of salt.

Cream, sugar and lard, then add butter-milk—sift flour and roll raisins and nuts—add soda, jam, spices and salt and bake in moderate oven 1 hour.
